Three Killed at New London Crossing

AGED COUPLE, DRIVER, HIT BY FAST TRAIN

By-Stander Sees Car Hurled 200 Yards In Accident Monday Evening.

LOOKED WRONG WAY

Coroner Identifies Bodies By Hunting Licenses Found In Clothing.

Three persons, two of them past 80, were killed instantly at 7:20 p. m. yesterday on the Walnut street crossing of the Big Four railroad at New London when their car was struck by a fast eastbound passenger train.

John Cassell, New London, only witness to the accident, said the driver, W. J. Evans, 62, Wellington, apparently was watching a westbound train, approaching in the distance, when he drove onto the tracks and did not see the other fast train.

Officials said wreckage of the automobile was strewn for nearly 200 yards along the tracks. Coroner J. D. Bradish, Huron county, identified the driver and two passengers, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Smith, Clarksfield, from hunting licenses found in fragments of the men's clothing.

Smith was 86 and his wife 80. They had been neighbors of Bradish for more than 30 years.

Officials said the Smiths presumably were being brought to New London from nearby Clarksfield by Evans to visit their grandson, Maurice Smith.

The bodies were taken to the Fitch funeral home, New London.

Double funeral services for Mr. and Mrs. Smith will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at Clarksfield Methodist church. Rev. Charles M. Willman officiating. Burial will be Clarksfield cemetery.

Surviving are four sons, George and Joseph, of New London; Ralph of Washington, D. C.; and James

$2,422,470 Damages Asked By Bedford, O., Realtor.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)—Abraham Berg, wealthy Bedford, O., real estate man and former operator of a Boston importing and exporting business, was plaintiff in a $2,422,470 damage suit on file in common pleas court today against two former friends.

Defendants in the action were Lee M. Friedman, Boston attorney, and a cousin, Edwin M. Friedman, who managed Berg's European interests from 1902 to 1938.

The suit alleges that Berg lost $1,211,235 through "fraud, forgery and outright thefts" in his European business while they were under the management of Edwin Friedman.

BOMB AIRFIELD

RAF Hits Italian Base On North African Front.

ROME — (AP) — British planes bombed an Italian airfield on the North African front as well as a Libyan base, the Italian high command announced today, but lost two planes.

Italian planes bombed British camps and armored cars and two railroad stations in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, its communique added.

Governor Picks Third Men In All Ohio Counties Today.

BULLETIN

The three members of the Richland county draft committee were to go into session at 1:30 p. m. today at the courthouse to consider personnel for the three five-man draft boards for the county.

R. B. Gardner, retiring commander of the Ohio department of the American Legion, today was named by Governor John W. Bricker as the third member on the Richland county draft committee which will name the three draft boards for this county.

Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston and Probate Judge Charles J. Anderson were named several days ago.

Governor Bricker had named common pleas and probate judges all over the state as two members of draft committees, and third member's names were announced today at the governor's office in Columbus

These three-men committees will in turn name the members of the local draft boards. In Richland county, there will be three draft boards of five members each, making a total of 15 men to be named by the draft committee.

All appointments to draft boards are subject to approval by President Roosevelt.

Mansfield and Richland county will be set up in three draft districts, each under the control of a board. In the first district will be Mansfield city wards one, two, three and four; in District No 2, there will be the fifth and sixth wards and Madison township outside of the city; and District No. 3 will be made up of all of the

WILLKIE WARNS OF CYNIC FATE

Asserts New Deal Road Leads to Democracy's End; Gets Boos at Pontiac.

(By United Press)

ABOARD WILLKIE TRAIN, Enroute Through Michigan—Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell L. Willkie warned industrial Michigan today that "if we continue down the road we are going this democracy will disappear."

He asserted to 20,000 persons whom he addressed from the Pontiac, Mich., courthouse lawn that the New Deal had attempted to solve every problem that arose either by appropriation of more money or "grabbing more power."

Egg Splatters On Mrs. Willkie

PONTIAC, Mich.—(U.P.)—Eggs were tossed at Republican Presidential Nominee Wendell Willkie as his automobile drove through Pontiac streets today and Mrs. Willkie was spattered.

One egg shattered on the back of the front seat of the open car and splashed over Mrs. Willkie's legs and shoes.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va. —(AP)—Winifred L. Watkins of Richmond and Winifred L. Watkins of Birmingham, Mich., are having a tough time as freshmen at Mary Washington college here.

"I've a letter from your boy friend," said the Richmond Miss Watkins to Miss Watkins of Michigan.

"And I've got a letter from your boy friend," replied the latter.

DEFENSE MOVE

Restricts Shipment of Optical Equipment For War Use.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— President Roosevelt today tightened up on exports of war materials by subjecting to the export licensing system fire control instruments, military searchlights, aerial cameras and other types of military equipment containing optical elements.

The new restrictions, which become effective Oct. 15, do not in themselves constitute an embargo. However, the order creates machinery for shutting off such exports at will, simply by refusing the issuance of export licenses.

A White House statement accompanying the proclamation said Mr. Roosevelt took the action to strengthen national defe se.

Looking Over City's Airport Needs

With Mansfield in line for extensive government financed improvements at the municipal airport, state and federal officials came here this morning to look over the field and discuss the proposed program. In the above picture, James R. Harrington, airport manager (left) points out to State Director of Aeronautics Earl A. Johnson (center) and Jean DuBuque, regional CAA airways engineer, one of the "humps" that should be eliminated from the field.

'Putter-Offers' Give City License Bureau Big Day

Procrastinating Drivers Obtain 2,327 Permits on Monday, Shattering All Previous Records.

The old American custom of putting things off to the last moment brought no smiles to workers in the Auto club offices yesterday.

The hugest last-day crowd of procrastinators in five years fought for places in the line-up to get their drivers licenses, and today the mad flurry was still going on.

In the short span of a day's work, 2,327 licenses were issued at the Auto club yesterday and Assistant Secretary Jack Berger, with plenty to say about human weaknesses, predicted today that a new record would be set today for "day-after" sale.

All together Auto club workers have written 14,263 operators' licenses and 1,197 chauffeurs' licenses during the past month as against 14,457 operators' and 1,313 chauffeurs' permits issued during a like period last year.

This means, according to figures, that there were 194 fewer operators' licenses and 116 fewer chauffeurs' permits issued this year than last.

But these figures don't worry Berger. Basing his judgment

G. O. P. STARTER

Rally Tonight Brings Bender, Bettman to County.

Richland county Republicans will get their fall campaign under way officially tonight with a major rally in the Warner building where Gilbert Bettman and Congressman George Bender will speak.

Bender, a Clevelander, seeking re-election as congressman-at-large, will speak first at the meeting which is scheduled to start at 8 p. m. Bettman, former attorney general of Ohio and a candidate for the Ohio supreme court on the non-partisan ticket, will come here from a rally in Shelby earlier in the evening.

The meeting will be sponsored by the Willkie-Bricker-Burton club which will bring other major G. O. P. candidates to the city for addresses during the next month.

'MESH' PLANS FOR AIRPORT DEVELOPMENT

State and Federal Officials In City to Co-ordinate Two Projects.

GIVE VERBAL O. K. TO NYA

Administrator In Washington Calls Improvement List Only Tentative.

With a $186,000 appropriation for proposed improvements at municipal airport pending before the senate, state and federal officials came to Mansfield today to shape up plans for the early development of the local field.

While visiting here this morning they considered a $40,000 National Youth administration proposal, also planned for the port, so the proposed work would "mesh" with the projected government program.

Arriving at the port shortly before 8 a. m. Jean DuBuque, Columbus, regional CAA airways engineer, and State Director of Aeronautics Earl A. Johnson, surveyed the field with officers of the Richland county chapter of the National Aeronautical association, NYA, and city officials.

Verbal approval of the work to be done by NYA, was made by DuBuque and Johnson, and L. C. Roesner, sub-area supervisor for NYA said that the proposal would be "rushed" to completion so work could be started at the earliest possible date.

The project which would employ 100 youths for a period of a year calls for levelling the field, extending and sodding runways, laying of drainage tile, and construction of an administration building.

DuBuque cited the need for getting the work started this fall, pointing out that grading and levelling should be completed be-

County's Free Of Debt Today, First Time In 30 Years

Richland county tax payers can put a red ring around this date on the calendar, for they are debt-free for the first time in many years.

Today County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe paid off $9,000 in bonds and interest, which cleans the county debt slate for the first time in 30 years. The last bond of $3,000 held by the Mansfield Savings Trust National Bank, was paid to C. H. Ackerman, president of the bank.

The peak indebtedness of the county was in 1925 when the total debt was $2,500,000. A million dollars had been paid off by 1930 and in the past ten years the remaining $1,500,000 has been cleaned up.

Employes of the auditor's office today were seeking some means of celebrating the event, but burning the cancelled bonds was prohibited since the stamped bonds must be filed for state examiners.

ORDER EMBARGO

Egyptian Government Withholds Cotton From Japan.

CAIRO —(U.P.)— An order was issued today forbidding shipment to Japan of a quantity of Egyptian cotton lying in Alexandria harbor ready for transport to the Far East, apparently in retaliation against Japan for her signing of the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo military alliance.

Japan has been largely dependent upon Egypt for a supply of long-staple cotton used in munitions manufacture.

Mussolini and Suner Discuss Spanish Stand

Axis Powers Fear British Glee Over Franco's Hesitancy; Attack Base On Gibraltar Still Available For Fascist Planes

BULLETIN

BERLIN—(U.P.)—A new German-Russian railroad agreement, it was reliably reported, will be signed in Berlin this afternoon.

(By Associated Press)

ROME — Authoritative sources declared today that immediate Spanish entry into the European war was not an issue at conferences started this morning between Premier Mussolini and Generalissimo Francisco Franco's minister of government, Ramon Serrano Suner.

Italo-German friendship for Spain, it was said, will not permit any pressure upon Spain to step into an active part in the war.

The Rome talks were said to have "a very important aim—already reached—of reinforcing, clarifying and making precise the identity of views between the Nationalist Spain of Generalissimo Franco and two victorious Axis powers."

The source added that England probably would "shout victory" and say that "Spain resisted Axis pressure," but that no such pressure had been brought to bear.

The Spanish envoy came to Rome from Berlin, where he had conferred with Adolf Hitler and other Nazi leaders. He saw Mussolini shortly after arriving. Serrano Suner then went to lunch with Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Foreign observers said they believed Serrano Suner and Premier Mussolini would put the final touches to an understanding defining Spain's part in Italian-German plans to conquer Gibraltar but Fascists discounted the possibility of a formal alliance at the present time.

In general the Fascist press reflected a belief that Spain could be used in the Axis scheme as a base for attack on Gibraltar without entering into an outright military alliance.

Il Popolo Di Roma declared Spain already is "in the political system" of the Axis powers.

Il Messaggero said the Italians certainly could use Spain's friendship in the Axis service—which was taken by some neutral observers as a reference to Spain's importance as a stepping stone for an attack upon Gibraltar.

Commenting on the conferences, the authoritative Fascist editor, Virginio Gayda, frankly mentioned Gibraltar as one of the "vital, concrete problems" facing Spain, whose dreams of again becoming a world power, he said, have the sympathy of both Italy and Germany.

Calls On U. S. to Come Out In Open

BERLIN —(U.P.)— One of Germany's most authoritative organs, the Hamburger Fremdenblatt, today called upon the United States and Russia to come out in the open on one side or the other of the present war.

The Fremdenblatt accompanied its demand with a prediction that Russia would join with the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo forces in shaping an "Euro-Asian power bloc" in opposing Great Britain and "certain other interventionist circles" which seek to expand the war.

The reference to "interventionist circles" was presumed

CYCLONE: Nazis Say Early Raids Compare With Zephyrs

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—"Sustained attacks" upon military objectives in the Berlin area were carried out by strong forces of British bomber aircraft last night, the air ministry announced today.

(By United Press)

LONDON—Isolated German war planes broke through British defenses and bombed objectives southeast of London today but strong anti-aircraft fire and fighter squadrons drove back the main body of the raiders.

Bombs fell in the London area during the second of two air raid alarms following the success of new night fighter planes in keeping the Nazis away from the capital area.

The first air raid alarm passed without activity visible from central London but during the second raid there was heavy anti-aircraft fire.

(In Berlin, Nazis said that if present good weather continues over Britain the air attacks would be increased so greatly that it would be like a "cyclone as compared to a gentle zephyr.")

The German planes seemed to be attacking in greater numbers. They sought to penetrate defenses by darting in simultaneously from all points of the compass.

They bombed 27 widely scattered districts of the London suburban area but few got through to the central district.

Watchers in central London saw

CONFLICT: German - Russian Interests Clash In Baltic

(By United Press)

STOCKHOLM—Neutral diplomats reported today that Russia has massed 1,000,000 troops in the Baltic states and Germany has concentrated possibly 350,000 in Norway where horses and men are being trained, apparently for an invasion of Britain.

Concentration of these heavy forces in and around Scandinavia, it was said does not necessarily mean imminent developments on the northern front. Activity, it was suggested, may or may not develop after winter freezes northern lakes and rivers, making troop movement easier.

Scores of airfields and more than a dozen harbors, are being built or enlarged by Russians in the Baltic states, returning diplomats said. Large numbers of mechanized units are being assembled in Lithuania.

A large number of German soldiers—best estimates say 50,000—are concentrated in the north Norwegian province of Finnmark.

Finland's single ocean port of Petsamo is only 18 miles from the German-controlled Norwegian frontier.

Should Russia attempt to invade Finland again, Germany is expected to help Finland with a sizable number of "volunteers" and large quantities of material, according to informed Scandinavian observers. Germany's new position in Scandinavia, culminating in the recent announcement of the landing of soldiers at Vasa and granting of the right of transit, has led

Noted War Correspondent Comes to City as Part of National Newspaper Week Observance

Kenneth Downs to Describe Fall of France Before Four Clubs on Oct. 9.

American newspapers are going to have a special observance week of their own, beginning today, in which they will try to bring to their readers a new realization of the importance of freedom of the press, speech, and religion in these times of tottering democracies and freedom.

As its part of the celebration, The News-Journal will bring Kenneth T. Downs, famous war correspondent, here for a talk Oct. 9 at a luncheon meeting of the Rotary, Kiwanis, Gyro and Optimist clubs at the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

As a correspondent for International News Service, which serves The News-Journal, Downs has been an eye-witness to most of the important events in Europe in recent years. He will tell of his experiences, including the fall of France, in his talk here.

He was one of the three American newspapermen who saw the wedding of the Duke of Windsor to Mrs. Wallis Simpson. During the past year he "covered" the start of Hitler's offensive on Paris, watched the bombardment and evacuation of Paris, and scored a beat on other reporters in reporting the capitulation of France.

More than 1,000 dailies and 4,000 weekly papers will participate in National Newspaper week, running advertisements to remind readers of the service of newspapers and acquainting them with the activities of the press.

Gov. John W. Bricker, in a letter to Ed. Martin, director of the Ohio Newspaper association, expressed his appreciation to Ohio publishers for their service to the public.

"A free press is the backbone of democracy and today more than ever before we must protect that right," the governor said.

Bride Wants Help With Cooking

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The bride's dilemma concerning her first attempts at housekeeping have furnished many a jokesmith with material.

In other days, when daughters remained under the parental roof oftener than they do today, their housekeeping mistakes were fewer. They saw how mother did it, and oftener than not they did it themselves. There was an exchange of recipes among neighbors for substantials and delicacies. And pretty nearly everyone made a serious business of housekeeping.

But today, when daughter, Dorinda closes her desk at the office, gets married over the week-end and starts housekeeping in a tiny flat, she is more perturbed about the length of time it takes to cook a roast than she ever was about adding up a column of figures or turning out the boss' letters faultlessly from her transcribed notes.

This letter, for instance:

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"We were an old-fashioned family, eight strong — father, mother and six children. I got a job as soon as I graduated from business college and never thought much about the excellent meals that appeared on the family table and how they got there.

"My mother was a perfect housekeeper, never made any fuss or flurry. Meals, housecleaning, laundry work came and went like a wound clock. I supposed it would be that way in our little flat when I married Jim. But it isn't.

"I have three nice new shiny cookbooks, but my refrigerator has too many leftovers. I cook too much. And my two-room kitchen and bath apartment is much more difficult to keep in order than my late boss' correspondence and the bookkeeping I did on the side.

"Some girls of my acquaintance were telling me that you seemed to be the liaison officer between some very useful bulletins issued by the department of agriculture and their homes. How can I get these documents? And I'd like the name of a good reliable cookbook for a family of two. When I ask mother about these things, I become the subject of family jokes, and I'm getting tired of being the butt of their witticisms.

"BRIDE."

The United States department of agriculture, bureau of home economics, has numerous bulletins for the homemaker dealing with food and nutrition. One of the best of these is "Diets to Fit the Family Income," Farmer's Bulletin 1757. They have 25 other bulletins, a list of which you may get by writing to the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.

There's an excellent cookbook "Cooking for Two," by Janet Hill, which you might consult at the public library and see if it meets your requirements.

Having kept books, it should not be difficult for you to divide mathematically any cooking recipe so that it will be proportionally enough for two. All newspapers and magazines today have good recipes. Try out some of the simpler ones in your leisure hours.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"I'll not take that wager," I told Lilian with a look at my wrist watch. "In one more minute, it will be the hour Mr. Veritzen named, so I am sure he's at the gate now."

I was at the house telephone by the time I finished speaking, and Lillian was at my elbow.

"Here's where I fly the coop," she said. "If you need me, just signal 'our' room where I shall hibernate until I'm needed. It's clearly indicated on the cards that you're the angel of light who should shelter poor erring Philip under your snowy wings."

"I can hear the car drawing up to the veranda steps, so if you—"

"I'm already gone," she shot back at me, and in the fraction of a second was on her way upstairs, while I opened the door leading to the veranda, and, mindful of my promise to my father, not to cross the threshold, stood in the doorway, waiting to greet our guest.

I had not long to wait. As I opened the door, Otto was already helping his master to alight, and then, with an odd squaring of his shoulders as if to meet an expected blow, Philip Veritzen came up the steps, so pre-occupied that he did not see me until he had almost reached the door. And though he swept off his hat, and gave me the full benefit of his usual elaborately formal bow, his face was so altered, so ravaged, his eyes so staring and tortured, that I almost cried out in alarm, for I never had seen the usually poised, confident complacent — and arrogant—impresario in such apparently desperate straits.

"Where can I see you alone?" he asked as soon as his formal greeting of me was completed. Lillian often says that Phil Veritzen would keep to his code of behavior even while the devil was stretching him on a gridiron.

"Right in the library," I said. He was in no condition to meet anyone upon whose full sympathy and cooperation he could not count.

But even his abstraction was not proof against the changed appearance in the library. He stopped abruptly in the doorway, while his eyes swept the array of cots, the piles of suitcases and boxes, the screened alcoves and corners.

"What—is all this?" he asked.

"The women and children are to sleep down here at night until this affair is over," I told him. "My father is afraid that fire may be one of the consequences of Leslie's expected attack."

"Yes, he might be able to do that," he said. Then he faced me almost militantly.

"Queen Olga and her daughter —are they to be down here with the rest?" he inquired.

I knew what was coming, but I made by voice casual and matter-of-fact.

"Naturally," I said. "We could not guard them adequately if they were not here."

"But—they will have no privacy," he protested. "Isn't there some room near this—how about that little study of yours which adjoins the library, could you not quarter them there?"

Link Pork Sausages.
Link Sausages
Potatoes

Scrub potatoes thoroughly and take out centers with apple corer. Insert 1 sausage in the hole in each potato and bake until potatoes are tender.

Link Sausages and Tomatoes.
Link Pork Sausages
1 can tomatoes
Breadcrumbs

Simmer sausages in boiling water for about 5 minutes. Put layer of fine breadcrumbs in buttered baking dish, add 1 can tomatoes or its equivalent in fresh tomatoes, season with pepper and salt. Lay sausages on top, sprinkle with more breadcrumbs and bake for 15 or 20 minutes or until brown.

Link Sausages.

Cut sausages apart, prick each one with fork, put in frying pan and cover with cold water. Bring to boil, then drain off water and set again on low fire to brown. Be sure sausages are done and nicely brown, but not shriveled and dried in cooking. Or put sausages in frying or baking pan, cover with boiling water and allow to simmer for 1 minute. Drain water off and continue cooking, either on top of stove or in oven until done.

Apple-Pineapple Pudding.
Fruit Mixture
3 cups sliced apples
1 can crushed pineapple
1¼ cups sugar
2 tablespoons flour
2 teaspoons butter

Batter.
1 cup flour
1½ teaspons baking powder
⅔ cup milk
2 tablespons shortening
2 tablespons sugar
½ teaspoon salt

Mix sugar and flour of fruit mixture and stir into the fruit. Spread the mixture in a nine-inch cake pan and dot with butter. Cover and put into hot oven while mixing batter. Drop the batter by spoonfuls over the apples and bake about 30 minutes at 425 degrees. Serve warm with the crust above the fruit, with juice surrounding it.

You can remove green grass stains from flannels by applying a mixture of equal portions of egg white and glycerine. Wash in the usual manner after an hour or two.

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD — Robert Montgomery, after his ambulance-driving career in France was ended, sent his wife a cable from Bordeaux advising he would return home. . . . She got it the other day, after Bob had been back more than a month, had finished one picture and started "Mr. and Mrs. Smith." . . . Bob is chief cheerleader among the actors for Wendell Willkie. . . . On the F. D. R. side of the fence it's Melvyn Douglas. . . . Which shows how times have changed from the days when actors weren't supposed to have political opinions, or let them be known if they did have any. . . .

Happiest directors in town are Tay Garnett and Al Hill. . . . Garnett draws "Cheers for Miss Bishop" with Martha Scott, who after only two pictures is rated "hot." . . . Hall gets "This Thing Called Love," with Rosalind Russell, whose two releases in one week, both of hit caliber, make her "hotter" than ever. . . . Hall has made seven comedies in a row, has no intention of quitting now —not with things in the world at large so far from comic. . . .

Jack Moss, ex-Gary Cooper manager who turned producer, is making "D. O. A." (Dead on Arrival) as a follow-up to his sentimental "Biscuit Eater." . . . "D. O. A." of course, isn't a horror picture, Jack said he'd never do horror pictures. . . . It's a sweet little yarn about killers and transplanted brains—but it ISN'T a horror picture!

Elizabeth Patterson, in "Who Killed Aunt Maggie?" is strangled —with a nylon stocking. . . . "A very modern story, you see," says "Patty." . . . Miss Patterson, the pride of Savannah, Tenn., never has trouble with directors or anybody else—"I think a lot but I don't talk much. . . ."

Not quite a cycle yet, but the daffy stuff is on the verge of a return. . . . There's "I Love You Again," "He Stayed for Breakfast," "You'll Find Out" and touches of zaniness in "This Thing Called Love." . . .

Ann Miller, nice child, hostessed Hugh Herbert on his birthday, which was opening day of "Hit Parade of 1941." . . . Ordered ice cream and cake for everybody and charged it. . . . Other day she said Woo-Woo and remarked that the party hadn't cost her anything, she'd never had a bill. . . . "I know," said Hugh. "They sent the bill to me." . . . Ann goes into "Melody Ranch," the Gene Autry "special." . . . Likewise Jimmy Durante. . . .

That good old-fashioned gambling equipment used in scenes of "The Round-Up" is the real thing —bought from gambling ships that used to operate off the coast until the government stepped in. . . .

Prying around Hollywood you pick up the oddest information. . . . Like what to do if your cow has tail limpness, which is to slit the tail and insert a piece of bacon, or what to do if Bossy has warts, which is to cut a half-inch off her right horn. . . . That's what the research department for "Arizona" found the old-timers used to do, but that's not what's done today, and that's not what they did in the picture either. . . . In the picture they omitted veterinary shots entirely.

Pass	5 ♣

Contrast the way this hand was played at two different tables of a duplicate game, the club 8 being led in each case. At the first table, declarer won it with the A in dummy and immediately finessed the diamond Q, it being his habit to take any finesse he saw. West won with the K and led his club 5 to the Q. The heart 10 lost to the A, and West led his diamond 3 to the J and A. The declarer then raked in dummy's three hearts, trashing a diamond and a spade from his own hand. When he later led to the spade K, he lost two tricks in the suit and so was down two.

At the other table, the declarer won the club lead with the A, then laid down the Q, to make it impossible for the opponents to continue trumps and thereby to force their leads of other suits when in. He saw that hearts would furnish two diamond discards, that if he won a diamond finesse and discarded one diamond, it would leave him only a chance for one spade discard, which would be valueless. So after the two high trumps, he led his heart 10 to West's A.

The latter did not like to return the suit and give the declarer immediate discards, so had his choice of either a diamond or a spade, both of which were desired by South. He chose a spade, his 4 to the 8 and A. A diamond was returned, taken by the A. The spade K was taken, two diamonds parked on hearts, a diamond ruffed. South's last spade ruffed and two clubs completed making of the contract.

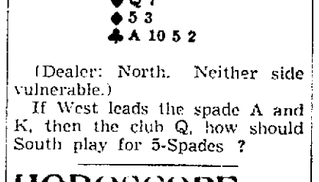
Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

If West leads the spade A and K, then the club Q, how should South play for 5-Spades ?

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, October 2.

Very auspicious lunar transits point to a particularly lively and progressive day, with the energies and faculties under high pressure for attaining high objectives. This applies to business, new projects and intellectual work of high order. Writings, publicity, promotional enterprises may flourish particularly if connected with large or secret organizations, where cleverness and subtlety are required. Social interests should also thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very active and progressive year. New ventures should move at a lively pace in launching new and important projects. Such efforts in connection with large corporations or secret societies where subtlety, craft, and unusual mental gifts and intuitions are valuable are under excellent planetary direction. All business pertaining to writings, promotion, advertising, and correspondence should thrive. Social and domestic contacts should also be successful.

A child born on this day will be highly intellectual, cultured, artistic and refined. He should have these fine talents backed up by much energy and initiative.

You can make a helpful sunburn preventative by adding half a teaspoonful of glycerine to three-quarters of a cup of water. Sponge this preparation over the skins.

I'LL WAIT FOR YOU + + +

By Margaret Gorman Nichols

(Copyright, 1940)

CHAPTER XXXII.

Holding her small, still tanned hands on the table, Edwina said, "If you'll go back to Newton to stay, Alan, I'll go back with you."

The words surprised her although the moment they were said they released a flood of thoughts . . . "Now I know! That's what I really want to go back with Alan, to help him, to go home where I belong . . ."

His eyes narrowed. "You mean . . ."

"Yes." She grinned her gamin grin and suddenly felt absurdly young and shy. "It's leap year, you know." And because all at once this had become the most important thing in the world, she leaned forward and continued, "Don't you see? It's the 'right' thing for both of us to do! Maybe we can't be romantic like Carol and Norman but we're two of a kind, Alan. We've made mistakes and we're sorry and there's a job to do in Newton, your job, and I'd like to help. . . You can't run away. I won't let you. We won't speak of love . . ."

His voice was low. "And why shouldn't we, Edwina? You never knew how crazy I was about you five years ago, how scared and angry. The minute I'd admit it, I'd deny it. There were so many good reasons for not loving you—your money the principal reason."

"You're getting me all mixed up."

His eyes were steady. "I'm not mixed up now. I know how wonderful you are, and now I don't feel good enough for you. I want to go home and I'll grit my teeth to get back my self-confidence, and work hard and honestly. And some day we'll probably both realize that we've been in love for five years and it's influenced everything we've done. A psychologist could explain it to us but I don't think we need him, do you?"

"We don't need anybody, Alan." The wine made her feel lightheaded and sentimental and the music quietly plucked the strings of her heart. She thought: I'm going to cry like a schoolgirl any minute. Edwina Burke, who has done everything and seen everything, is going to cry because she's safe and happy at last and she isn't going to be alone. Jock Aldridge would say I'd gone soft, but I like the feeling. It's warm and comfortable, like coming in to a fire after the cold. And Alan, so serious still, who looks at me as if I can answer all his questions . . .

His smile was excited. "Well! We . . . What do you want to do, Edwina?"

They were like shy children, she thought. "You might ask me to marry you this time . . ."

"Will you marry me? Sorry there are no roses and moonlight, but it doesn't matter to me. I can't think of a cozier place, and we couldn't wish for better music for the occasion." His large hand, browner than hers, covered her tightly clasped hands. "I'll never let you down . . . And if I seem to hesitate for nice things to say, it's because, well, . . . I've said most of them to Carol and I don't want any second-hand words for you—they'd sound hollow now. Besides, I can't express my feelings very well. It's difficult to explain happiness. You're just happy, that's all . . ."

She drew in her lips. "I'll marry you, Alan, and I—I see Poppa coming with your spaghetti and my coffee. You must be starving. You eat and I'll listen to the music. . ."

"Can't you listen to the music and talk to me, too? Everything you say has so much good sense and reason . . ."

When Poppa left, she said, "Let's not be sensible for a couple of days. Let's go some place where we can be married tomorrow. I know a hotel in New England on a lake. It's beautiful there at this time of the year and there are not many people there. Let's go there before we go home. Shall I go on?"

Alan nodded happily.

"Well . . . I'd like a house. I detest apartments. I'd like a small white house with a garden. I want children. And since I'm in such good favor in Newton now, I'll be quite an asset to you if you go into politics. I'll join the clubs and make campaign speeches. A very busy little wife . . . We'll swim at the quarry and dance at the club and let everybody see us and talk about us until they find somebody else to talk about. I don't think Amy will be at all surprised . . . My life will be full and useful. I'll be needed and loved. And perhaps some day after we've worked very hard and we've done a good job, we'll buy back the big house, and dad's picture will be above the fireplace in the drawing room again. Outline of life, Alan. Do I sound sensible and reasonable?"

"Very. And about the few days in New England, too. I've never been there. You'll have to tell me about the places you've visited. But now . . . I'll get my baggage from the station and go to a hotel and call for you at daybreak. . . ."

"And neither of us will sleep. And tomorrow I'll send a telegram to my office telling them I'm resigning to take a better position. And we'll send a telegram to Amy and maybe we'll be extravagant and send a cable to Carol and Norman. I thought they had everything, and I was glad for them. But they haven't. We have it too, Alan. Shall we go? Let's walk until we're tired. I was out walking tonight and I was lonely. I was talking to myself and trying not to be sorry for myself. Now I can talk to you and you to me. Let's not have any secrets. Let's share good and bad. Let's work hard and play hard and . . ."

"And when we're in New York always come here . . ."

On the street, she put her arm through his and knew by the look he gave her that her gesture of intimacy so touched him that for a time he couldn't say anything. But as they walked, looking ahead, she felt that their thoughts were in harmony, that his hopes, his gratitude and his excitement equalled hers, and that her words had pictured for him a life for which he was as eager as she. They looked like small-town honeymooners, the fair, strongly-made, sunburned boy, and the girl dressed plainly, her arm possessively through his. But you could not help a strong desire to possess, she thought. The lonely human heart cried for something or someone to love and the framework around which to build a solid life srtucture.

Pausing on the sidewalk, Edwina said, "I'll wait for you," and without a word he took her arms and kissed her mouth hard and left her and went inside.

"I'll wait for you," she had said . . . That's what women always said. No matter how tired, or how busy or how hurt or how ill, they always said, "I'll wait for you," and from that promise came patience and courage. Smiling, she though: It's all so simple when you know. But you are not born knowing and you won't listen to the people who have learned . . .

Presently she saw Alan hurrying toward her and smiling—as a small boy, eager and impatient, bearing a gift . . .

100 ENROLL IN EIGHT CLASSES

Defense Training at Senior High School Progresses, Oberlander Reports.

More than 100 students have enrolled in the fall National Defense classes being held in the vocational department at Mansfield Senior high school, V. H. Oberlander, director for the program in this area, announced yesterday.

To date, six of the classes have already started and two more met for the first time last night, Oberlander said.

The classes which have already started are machine shop practice, automotive shop practice, electrical shop practice, gas welding, and electrical welding. Those started last night are blueprint reading and drawing.

Oberlander said yesterday that there were still some vacancies in the blueprint reading and drawing classes to be filled and that those interested in joining the classes could enroll this week.

The fall program will continue through the next 10 weeks.

Muhlenbroich Sticks to Intention of Pleading Guilty

KIDNAPER GETS ATTORNEYS FOR COURT EPISODE

Judge Refuses to Take Plea Until Defendant Advised By Counsel.

(By United Press)

REDWOOD CITY, Calif.—Resigned to spending the rest of his life in prison without hope of parole, Wilhelm Jakob Muhlenbroich said he would plead guilty in superior court today to kidnaping three-year-old Marc De Tristan, Jr., son of the Count and Countess De Tristan, for $100,000 ransom.

The 40-year-old German alien and barber wanted to plead guilty yesterday, but Judge Maxwell McNutt refused to hear him until he was represented by counsel. Judge McNutt appointed two lawyers to advise him and postponed the case until today.

"I know what I'm up against," Muhlenbroich said. "I know there is no chance of ever getting out of prison. But I don't want to ask leniency."

Muhlenbroich wrested the child from his nurse at Hillsborough Sept. 20. Two days later, two lumbermen captured him in the Sierra Nevada foothills, and rescued the child. That same day, he confessed to federal bureau of investigation agents. A week after he committed the crime that he had painstakingly planned for two years, the San Mateo county grand jury indicted him on charges of violating the California "little Lindbergh law." It provides a maximum sentence of life imprisonment and precludes parole if the kidnap victim is not harmed. The De Tristan child was not harmed.

Officials indicated Muhlenbroich would be taken to San Quentin prison after he was sentenced.

College Students Spend Large Part Time In Playing

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Joe College and Betty Co-Ed spend more time playing than anything else except sleeping, the national recreation congress heard today.

Porter Butts, director of the division of social education at the University of Wisconsin, reported this conclusion from a survey in which mid-western students were questioned.

"The average student spends 41.1 hours a week in leisure pursuits," he reported. "The greatest amount of this time is occupied by relatively aimless loafing, bull sessions, radio listening, drinking and driving. Physical recreation averages one-eighth of total leisure.

"Organized student activities, contrary to common belief, are scarcely a threat to academic interest, involving only 36 per cent of the student body and only 3.5 per cent of the total leisure time."

John H. Chase, 65-year-old superintendent of the playground association of Youngstown, accused the audience of recreation directors of being "sissies" and "Namby Pamby promoters" in their approach to nature projects.

DIES FOLLOWING LONG ILLNESS

R. C. Boals Succumbs At Farm Where He Was Born.

Robert C. Boals, 73, died Monday, after a lingering illness, at the farm home in Mifflin township where he was born and had spent most of his life.

He is survived by his wife, Lelia; two sons, Lawrence J., and Lyman A. Boals, and one daughter, Mrs. Earl Pollock, all of Mansfield; and one grandchild and one great-grandchild.

The body was removed to the Wappner funeral home where services will be held Thursday at 2 p. m., Rev. G. E. Swoyer officiating. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery.

Operator Gapes at Crowd From Closed Doors of Car.

SPOKANE, Wash. —(AP)—Marion Hogan peeked out of the elevator he operates, touched the starting handle and the divided doors snapped on his neck.

For 20 minutes he gaped at a crowd gathered outside while a building engineer climbed into the elevator through a trap door at the top and removed the doors.

Hogan emerged "unhurt but uncomfortable."

PARENTS OF DAUGHTER

SHELBY—Word has been received here that Mr. and Mrs. Russell Heck of Oxford, O., formerly Shelby residents, are the parents of a daughter, Karen Ree, born Sept. 23.

Up and Down THE STREET

Charles F. Ackerman, Mansfield Savings Bank president, pocketed his ever-present crooked pipe this morning while having his picture taken as he received a check from Norman Wolf, county auditor, for the final payment of the county debt. His friends wondered if Ackerman would look natural without the pipe but he insisted he'd at least look more dignified.

Frank May, custodian of the Elks, was definitely in the race for top honors for the best squirrel hunting yarn of the season today when he told friends of his latest hunting experience. While hunting in a woods near Mansfield, May said he saw what looked like a large squirrel snuggling in the crotch of a tree. May said he was amazed at the size of the animal, but with shaking fingers he took aim and fired. Out of the tree dropped not one squirrel—but two.

There's a happy black and tan puppy out at Trailer City today but he didn't come by his tail-wagging joys without difficulty. A week or so ago he was presented to Joe Geiger. Feeling he couldn't take care of the dog as well as he'd like to, Geiger turned it over to the Daughters of Isabella with the suggestion that they sell it, at their recent rummage sale, to someone who longed for a pooch. At the rummage sale the dog got in the way plenty but he didn't bring any offers to buy. The following day, however, a lady whose dog had recently been killed by an auto adopted the black and tan canine and ended his tribulations with lots of food and affection.

115 SIGN UP

New Members Listed in Drive By John Simpson P. T. A.

H. J. Dotson, principal of John Simpson Junior high school, announced yesterday that 115 new members had been signed up for the John Simpson Parent-Teachers association since the membership drive opened a week ago.

During the past week students have taken home blanks for parents to fill out if they desired membership in the association, Dotson said.

John Simpson P. T. A. had set its goal at 300, Dotson said, and the campaign will continue until Oct. 15, when the number is expected to be reached. Mrs. Margaret Ackerman is in charge of the campaigning.

SUPER-HIGHWAY OPEN FOR USE

Ticket-Sellers Busy as Cars Roll Over Pennsylvania 'Dream Road.'

(By Associated Press)

CARLISLE, Pa.—Motorists willing to pay tolls to avoid tortuous routes over the Allegheny mountains rolled today over Pennsylvania's 160-mile "dream highway," hailed by its builders as the forerunner of a nationwide network of super-highways for national defense.

Twenty-three months after ground was broken for the easily-graded, four-lane route between Harrisburg and Pittsburg, ticket-sellers gave the go signal at 12:01 a. m.

There was no fanfare or ceremony commensurate with the $70,000,000 cost of the express highway and the toil of drilling through the tunnels Andrew Carnegie left partly finished when he abandoned his projected South Penn railroad more than 50 years ago. President Roosevelt is expected to dedicate the highway but the date has not been set.

Although the highway was designed for speed, with grades no greater than three per cent, sweeping curves, and seven tunnels through the Alleghenies, users were held down to 50 miles an hour for an experimental period. Test cars bettered 100 miles an hour before the turnpike was opened.

There are no traffic lights or intersections.

The toll for passenger cars is $1.50 for the full route, or $2.25 for a round trip good for 30 days. On shorter trips the fare is a cent a mile.

Truck charges range from $3 to $10 for the route and from two to six cents a mile for shorter distances.

DIES AT HOME NEAR BUTLER

Robert Goon Was Life-Long County Resident: Burial Today.

BUTLER—Robert Goon, lifelong resident of Richland county, died at his home east of Butler last evening after a long illness. He was 81.

Mr. Goon is survived by his widow, Anna, and one sister, Mrs. Ella Wells of Perrysville.

Services will be conducted at the George funeral home here at 2 p. m. Wednesday by Rev. George Schrack and burial will be in Bunker Hill cemetery. The family has asked that flowers be omitted.

O. S. R. SENTENCE

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Charles Brady, 20, Xenia, was under sentence to Mansfield reformatory today on four counts of burglary of inhabited dwellings. Judge Edward C. Turner of Franklin county sentenced him to 10 years on the first count and five years on the second to run consecutively. Five year terms on the third and fourth counts will run concurrently.

OHIO VOTERS STUDY PROS AND CONS OF REPEAL OF SALES TAX

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio voters today studied the pro and con of sales tax repeal as summarized by the state's gubernatorial candidates.

Former Gov. Martin L. Davey, Democrat, declared the levy "obnoxious, unfair and increasingly disappointing as a revenue producer."

Gov. John W. Bricker, Republican, asserted that repeal of the sales tax would "close the schools" and cripple local governments."

Davey contended that the sales tax was no longer necessary because improved business conditions had eliminated the "financial emergency" which prompted it. He said it was not the intention of the legislature which passed the law to continue the levy indefinitely.

The former governor declared, however, that he would not undertake to repeal the tax until "a satisfactory substitute program is ready." He said he would have tax experts study the problem and make suggestions.

"The sales tax," he continued, "is the most expensive to collect of any tax that I have ever heard about."

He also said it imposed an "exasperating burden on the poor," amounting to an average of $7 a year for every man, woman and child in the state.

Bricker asserted that the sales tax yielded $50,000,000 a year, $12,000,000 going to local governments and $38,000,000 to schools.

"Without the sales tax, how much do you think the schools would get?" he asked.

"No one defended the sales tax more vigorously than Mr. Davey when he was governor," Bricker continued. "The sales tax became a permanent law when he was governor. He recommended it and urged the legislature to make it permanent."

INAUGURATION

Ceremony for O. S. U. Prexy Scheduled Oct. 24-25.

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)— Howard L. Bevis will be inaugurated as president of Ohio State university on Friday morning, Oct. 25, at ceremonies on the campus beginning at 9:30 a. m., the official inauguration program disclosed today.

Herbert S. Atkinson, Columbus, president of the board of university trustees, will administer the formal oath after addresses by President Clarence Dykstra of the University of Wisconsin and President James Bryant Conant of Harvard university.

The complete inauguration program will last two days, Oct. 24 and 25.

JOHNSON ACT MODIFICATION BEING FOUGHT

Defeated Utah Senator Puts Up Measure For Further Aid to Britain.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — A bitter senate fight was promised today over a proposal to provide money for Great Britain.

The proposal, which would lift the Johnson act that prohibits loans to nations which defaulted on their World war debts, was introduced by Sen William H. King, (D., Utah) who has been defeated for renomination.

Sen. King presented a resolution which would scale down Britain's World war debt, authorize the president to loan money to Britain through the export-import bank, and give the president authority to negotiate for British island bases in the Pacific. His resolution provided for a waiving of the Johnson act and of the secton of the neutrality act prohibiting loans to belligerents, insofar as they apply to Great Britain.

The resolution faced strong opposition in the senate foreign relations committee, where similar proposals heretofore have mustered only a few votes, and strong opposition if it should reach the floor.

The proposal was made as the house planned to clear its calendar of the only remaining item of the administration's "must" defense program — the excess profits tax-plant amortization bill.

The report of the senate-house conferees who reconciled the senate and house versions of the bill will be taken up when the house convenes. Leaders expected it to be approved quickly and sent to the senate.

Senate leaders promised quick action. They hope to get the bill signed by President Roosevelt this week. It sets up a schedule of tax rates on profits above "normal," provides for the amortization of investments in defense plants within five years and suspends the present restrictions on the profits of holders of military and naval contracts.

Sen. Burton K. Wheeler (D., Mont) plans to discuss on the senate floor the extent of foreign control over American corporations engaged in national defense production. Sen. Warren R. Austin, (R., Vt.) blocked an attempt late yesterday to secure unanimous consent for passage of a resolution authorizing the senate interstate commerce committee to investigate the situation.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mohican State Park Director Will Talk at J. A. C. Meet.

Conservation and wildlife will be discussed by Capt. James A. Stevenson, U. S. army, Mohican State park director, when he appears as guest speaker at the regular meeting of the Junior Association of Commerce in the C. of C. rooms Wednesday night.

Harry Hollingsworth, J.A.C. president who will be in charge, has called the meeting for 8 p. m. Dr. John J. Clark will submit a report of the club's public health committee on the group hospitalization plan being offered by General hospital.

Discussion of the proposed one-mill operating levy for five city departments will be in charge of Richard Burnham. Richard Vaughn is program chairman.

Largest Class To Take Citizenship Exam Tomorrow

The largest naturalization class in Richland county's history will appear in common pleas court tomorrow to take examination for final papers, with Judge C. H. Huston and A. E. Weatherbee, Youngstown, representative of the immigration department, as examining officials.

Sixty-nine persons will take the examination, which, if successfully passed, will give them the right to become citizens of the United States.

This is 21 more than appeared at the fall class a year ago, according to Norman E. Henry, naturalization clerk.

Since the outbreak of the war in Europe there has been a steady increase in the number of persons applying for naturalization papers in the county, Henry said today.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Miss Midnight's Diary.

Dear Diary: I would hate to think of sabotage in El Morocco, and certainly I would think twice or three times before I accused Mr. Vernon MacFarlane of Fifth-Columning for a rival spot, but I feel it should not go unreported that Morocco's new decorations (which I approve, commend and cheer) include a plug for the Stork club.

This is a semi-startling item because it is no secret to habitues of either or both gilded boites that John Perona rarely invites Sherman Billingsley over for high tea, and likewise that Mr. Billingsley seldom sends Mr. Perona a seven-fold silk tie. And you do not catch any patch of zebra stripes on the Stork club walls to remind its patrons to go over to El Morocco after the next drink.

So you can imagine my mild astonishment when, at the opening of Morocco last week I noticed an advertisement for the Stork club fight over Mr. Perona's beautiful bar. Painted on the mirror, it was—two big, lovely Storks.

As I was admiring them, a zebra-striped chair hurtled through the perfumed air in the direction of the birds, and for a moment I had the horrified thought that Mr. Perona had discovered Mr. MacFarlane's trick and was bent on wiping out the hateful picture.

But as the noise of breaking glasses and feminine squeals died down, it turned out to be only Phillips Holmes, the former film juvenile, who throws chairs through the air with the greatest of ease.

So as far as I know, Mr. Perona doesn't know about the storks.

But I think Mr. Billingsley should. I think he ought to sit right down and write a thank-you note, beginning: "Dear John."

LaConga really was jumping on Saturday night, and so were the rhumba addicts who seemed to be standing on each other's shoulders and hanging from the ceilings.

The two prettiest couples in the room were Annabella and Tyrone Power on one side, Sonja Henie and Dan Topping diagonally opposite.

Old settlers here and there around the ringside could remember the time (three years or so ago) when Tyrone and Sonja, now Mrs. Topping, were the Romeo and Juliet of the celluloid. It just goes to show how time flits and how you can't bet money on hearts.

Herbert Hoover, jr., played host to a party of friends. He did not rhumba. He did not conga.

Col. Gonzalo Gomez, the headline hunter, did. He was with a young lady—not a model, not a show girl, not even an elopement prospect. His sister . . . Frank Parker, the tenor, trotted with Bunny Waters of the Diamond Horseshoe . . . Eddy Duchin wisecracked in a corner . . . Peggy Joyce guided her newest conquest, Glenn Young, in the intricacies of a rhumba and Burnice Smith LeBaron just sat and looked at her orchestra leading husband, Eddie, with doe, or honeymoon eyes.

Monday night at the Savoy Plaza the regulars and the visitors were grouped around Hildegarde tossing requests at her. Ethel Merman was there, and those handholders, Joan Bennett and Walter Wanger, comedian Phil Baker and harmonica fiend Larry Adler.

But the girl who caused the most heads to turn when she made her entrance was young Gloria Vanderbilt, looking grown-up and accompanied by a swain. She sent Hildegarde a note, asking her to sing a favorite song. It was "The Handsome Young Soldier." . . . The conscription influence?

When the blond chanteuse did her "tinkle song," there was enthusiastic audience chorusing as the customers beat their glasses with their spoons. Pood Edward G. Robinson! Leave it to him to have something untoward happen. He began as the most enthusiastic and versatile tinkler of them all, and then the Little Caesar in him came out. He tinkled so hard he broke his glass, and had to borrow his wife's.

One of the places to be was the Club Cuba, if only for a glimpse of Esmc O'Brien's hair. Esmc, always one of the more piquant and exotic-looking dobs, has topped all previous hair do's with her current one. It is a pompadour to end all pompadours—heavy bangs, inward curls, outward curls, unsweep, downsweep, and if my eyes didn't deceive me, even a "rat" or two.

Esme confessed that she has given up The Screen, and will devote herself to remaining a strictly Manhattan glamor girl. Her escort, blue-blooded Milton Chamberlain Klugh (who gossips say may have been a reason for her sudden change of heart about Hollywood) looked as if he was going to devote himself strictly to Esme.

Desi Arnaz and Ray Bolger were among the pros in the conga line; Rudy Vallee watched wistfully from the sidelines.

One of the table sitters brought out a theory, as to why Rudy wears dark glasses all the time. Rudy, the theorist said, is strictly a brunet's man—so he probably wears dark glasses to make blonds look brunet, and brunets look brunetter.

Eddie DeLange, the song writer, whose most famous effort was "So Help Me," used to switch girls in midstream, so to speak, and you would meet him at the Martinique with one belle, at the Stork an hour later with a different one, at Reubens early in the morning with still a third face. He is a changed man now. He was at Spivy's Roof and he did not have a girl with him and he did not sing "So Help Me."

So help me.

Cincinnati Tosses Pitching Against Detroit Sluggers

These Youngsters Play For Appleseed

When the Johnny Appleseed junior high school football team takes the field in its opening contest of the season early this month, Coach Paul Cameron will probably use the above 11 boys in his starting lineup. Under the guidance of Coach Cameron, Appleseed's first grid team has been holding daily practice sessions after school in preparation for the coming city junior high school football series with John Simpson junior high. Members of the Appleseed squad are, front row, left to right, Murray Swihart, left end; Dick Haley, left tackle; Jearild Zeller, left guard; Frank Miller, center; Earl Wendell, right guard; Francis Metcalf, right tackle, and Bill Roush, right end. Second row, left to right, Frank Bechel, fullback; Allan Kinkel, halfback; Albert Etzel, quarterback, and Paul Pfahler, halfback.

Series Expected To Go The Limit

Derringer and Walters Will Divide Duties In First Two Games for Reds.

By GAYLE TALBOT

CINCINNATI—(AP)—The Cincinnati Reds of the National league and the Detroit Tigers of the American, a couple of worthy champions, will pile into each other before a jam-packed crowd of 33,000 at Crosley Field here tomorrow in the opening game of the 1940 world series.

They will battle for two days here, shift to Detroit for three more shots at each other, not stopping for a day of rest, and then roll back here next Monday to settle the argument.

The title is settled by four out of seven, and most of those who follow baseball think the Reds and the Tigers are likely to go the limit. They appear to be evenly matched — Cincinnati's tight pitching against Detroit's distance hitting. Though it is far from conclusive, the most popular opinion is that the Reds are due to give the National league its first championship since 1934.

* * *

It is difficult to say why the Reds are a popular choice. Perhaps sentiment has much to do with it. They took a quick, though gallant, beating from the New York Yankees a year ago. They recovered from that licking, which was almost humiliating toward the last, to come back and capture their league bunting again by a margin that left no doubt.

Two National league umpires reflected the feeling about Manager Bill McKechnie's outfit:

"You're crazy if you bet against those boys," said one, while his companion nodded agreement. "They're tough, and I've umpired long enough to know. Maybe they look crippled right now, with Lombardi and Frey limping around. Maybe some bookmaker is offering odds against them. But don't let that fool you. These Reds are very hard to beat as long as they have a couple of fellows like Paul Derringer and Bucky Walters serving up that apple."

It is seldom that one umpire—much less two—will let himself grow enthusiastic about a ball team. So this might constitute a hunch.

The Detroiters, still flushed and feeling great from the welcome accorded them by their hometown supporters two nights ago, pulled into town last evening. Both clubs were scheduled to work out at Crosley Field this afternoon.

Neither pilot last night would name his starting pitcher. Manager McKechnie of the Reds said that Derringer and Walters would divide the first two games. The best guess is that Derringer will be wheeling them across for Hank Greenberg and Rudy York and the other Tigers to hit at when the main shooting starts at 1:30 p. m. (EST) tomorrow. Pilot Del Baker of the Tigers said it would be either Schoolboy Rowe or Buck Newsom on the hill, and the general opinion was that it would be Newsom.

Otherwise, there was no great conjecture about the world series line-ups. McKechnie said he felt sure that Lombardi would start the first game behind the bat for the Reds, but he had no idea how long the big catcher's injured ankle would last.

He was equally unsure about Lonnie Frey's chances of playing out the series at second base with a broken big toe. But he was much more optimistic about winning the series than he was a year ago before his team bucked the Yankees.

"All we've got to do is pitch to Greenberg and York," said Coach Jewel Ens, who scouted the Tigers toward the end of the campaign. "And we've got pitchers who can do that."

* * *

The Reds were intrigued by a report that Birdie Tebbetts, Detroit's first string catcher, was pegging the ball wildly in the closing game against Cleveland Sunday. Tebbets got an awful wallop on the head last week when an over-heated Cleveland fan tossed a basket of empty beer bottles off the upper porch, and the Reds were wondering if the blow might have given Birdie more of a jouncing than he realized.

JITNEY JINGLE WINS

ST. LOUIS—(AP)—Jitney Jingle, owned by Mrs. Jones Sexton of Granville, O., won the model hunter class at the national horse show last night.

John Simpson's Junior High Gridders

All set to meet their "cross town" rivals, Johnny Appleseed, are members of the John Simpson junior high school football squad, shown in the above photo, taken on the Simpson practice field last week. After several weeks of daily practice sessions since the opening of school, Coach Bob DeHaven has tentatively selected these boys as his starting lineup for the coming Simpson and Appleseed series. Shown above are, front row, left to right, Lee Crownover, right end; Jim Ashcraft, right tackle; Fred Kline, right guard; Joe Nixon, center; Bill Hoffman, left guard; Bob Sawhill, left tackle, and Jasper Browning, left end. Second row, left to right, Carl Schafer, quarterback; Ed Symseck, halfback; Jake Peterson, halfback, and Joe Parry, fullback.

Massillon Tigers Continue High School Football Supremacy

Powerful Team Hoisted Victory String to 26 With Win Over Warren.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The "world serious" is the big sports news this week, but it can't shove Ohio's high school gridders out of the public eye entirely.

Massillon's mighty Tigers, with a 59 to 0 triumph over Warren, hoisted their victory string to 26 three of them this year. That gave the Massillons a record of 171 points to none for the foe this year, and a total attendance of 48,000 for three tilts, 13,000 being on hand for the Warren conflict.

Right in there alongside the Tigers with three straight wins for the 1940 campaign were such powerhouses as Columbus North, Bexley, Fostoria, Washington C. H., Newark, Coshocton, East Liverpool, Wellsville, Lancaster, Mansfield, Lorain, Canton McKinley Alliance, Campbell Memorial, Girard, Youngstown Boardman and several others.

Dayton Fairmont, Steubenville and Findlay had two wins in as many starts. Major casualty of the week was Crestline, which lost its first in 11 games by bowing to Marion St. Mary's 20-6, with little Halfback Schuler getting all three touchdowns for the winners.

* * *

Athie Garrison, Canton McKinley's right halfback, is pacing the scoring field on the basis of incomplete returns, with 60 points on nine touchdowns and a half-dozen extra points in three contests. Horace Gillom, Massillon's sterling end, has 48 points, after a three-touchdown splurge last week.

* * *

Lorain loomed as one of the state's better teams as it beat Philly 54 to 0 to extend its winning streak to 17. That club has shut out three foes while scoring 124 points. New Philadelphia, after going unbeaten a year ago, is far down the list this season.

Boxer Fails To Appear

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Suspension proceedings against Patsy Perroni of Canton, Italian heavyweight boxer, were started today after he failed to appear for a scheduled 10-round bout with Jack (Buddy) Walker, Columbus Negro, last night.

* * *

The bout was billed for the Ohio heavyweight championship and drew a heavy advance ticket sale.

* * *

Col. Alfred Ballin, Columbus boxing commission chairman, asked the National Boxing association to suspend Perroni, who fought a draw with the undefeated Walker last April.

"Henny" Andrews, Perroni's manager, said Perroni failed to meet him at the New York airport yesterday for the trip to Columbus.

Bucks Prepare For Invasion Of Purdue Club

Confident After 30-7 Win Over Pittsburgh.

COLUMBUS — (INS) — The Battling Bucks of Ohio State, fresh and confident after their 30-7 victory over Pittsburgh in the season's opener, today brushed aside the headline heralding and went to work for Purdue — their Big Nine opening opposition in the Ohio stadium Saturday afternoon.

* * *

However, even though Coach Francis Schmidt and his aides have the sights set for Purdue, some reverberations were still resounding from the Pitt win.

Eddie Bruckner, Sandusky guard, apparently had beaten out his fellow townsman, Len Thom and Sub Andy Tobik for a regular starting post. Bruckner played great ball against the Panthers when installed after the Pitt scoring drive.

Dick Fisher, the Columbia clipper who played so well while filling in for the injured Jim Strausbaugh, will probably get the starting call against the Boilermakers despite the fact that Strausbaugh is ready.

From the Purdue camp, Buck scouts brought tales of "the fastest team in the Big Ten."

Paced by the sensational Mike Sylene, of Massillon, and All-American end Ted Rankin, Purdue is expected—at least by the Scarlet coaching staff—to give the Buckeyes greater opposition than did the purified Panthers.

Jimmy Wilson, Reds Coach, May Be World Series Hero At 40

Reserve Catcher to Handle Pitchers for Cincinnati In Classic.

By JOHN FRYE

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Just an offhand tip, though don't go overboard on anything these days, but a gentleman of 40 may pin his whiskers out of the way and be the hero of the world series starting in this town tomorrow.

The bouncy gaffer is James Wilson, one-time manager of the Philadelphia Phillies, latterly coach for the Cincinnati Reds, and currently their excellent reserve backstop. Three seasons ago he said the years were catching up and gave the kids a chance to make their marks.

The situation, briefly: "It's none too certain that Ernie Lombardi will be able to catch all the series games for the Reds, and any unexpected strain on that game foot may bench him for the duration.

Aside from the necessities of the game, baseball rules require each team to have a catcher on the field. If Lom isn't ready, Jimmy is, and maybe the Detroit Tigers will never know the difference.

Of the man who could retire after (1) A long and honorable career as one of the best catchers in the National league; (2) Having turned Bucky Walters into a pitcher; and (3) Being responsible for the development of a number of other good pitchers like Claude Passeau and Hugh Mulcahy—consider:

After Willard Hershberger's death, Jimmy took up the slack. He played in 16 games, caught both ends of one doubleheader, skewered most of the runners who thought they could steal a base, and generally had the time of his life in the old spot.

Offensively he turned in nine hits in 37 times for a .243 batting average. Two of them were doubles, one of which knocked in the winning run of a valuable game just before the Reds went on their pennant-clinching tour. Nothing sensational—just some hits where they were worth about $1,000 apiece to the club.

And if you think his 40-year-old legs need firecrackers, witness that he beat out a bunt and stole a base—the latter in the final game of the season. The Pittsburgh Pirates were so surprised that the catcher almost threw the ball across the street.

As for enthusiasm, Manager Bill McKechnie practically had to clam him like a raw rookie when he told Jim to quit coaching and put on the armor.

So keep an eye on James if he gets in.

Further, keep an eye in a year or two on James' son, Robert, the Reds' bull-pen catcher all summer and an 18-year-old Princeton freshman at present. (Pop won't let him cut classes to see the series). Bob, in the minds of the high officers of the Reds, has the makings of a pitcher and maybe there'll be a father and son battery around here some day.

Michigan Takes Lead In Ratings

CHICAGO —(INS)—The University of Michigan, by virtue of Tommy Harmon's twinkling feet and the 41-0 victory rolled up over the University of California Saturday, today took an early lead in the Azzi Ratem ranking of collegiate football teams.

Azzi Ratem issued its first ranking of the year with the explanatory note that it included only teams that have played this season.

The first ten ranked by the system were, in order, Michigan, Ohio State, Duke, Boston College, Wake Forest, Minnesota, So. Methodist, Texas Christian, Oregon State, and Santa Clara.

MT. GILEAD RANGE SITE OF RIFLE SHOOT SUNDAY

COLUMBUS — (INS) — With the state crown at stake, the Ohio Rifle and Pistol association will hold its final outdoor shoot of the season at the association's new range near Mt. Gilead Sunday.

The match will include twice over the Dewar courses, once with telescopic sights and once with metallic sights. The Dewar course consists of 20 shots at 50 yards and 20 at 100 yards.

THREE MAJOR LEAGUE MANAGERS GET CONTRACTS

NEW YORK — (INS) — Three major league managers had new contracts today after completing "satisfactory" seasons.

Del Baker, manager of the champion Detroit Tigers, was given a one-year contract with the salary not disclosed. Fred Haney, who directed the St. Louis Browns to their best season in years, also was hired for another season as was Bill Terry, manager of the New York Giants, who had their "worst" season in years.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

CINCINNATI—(U.P.)—The World Series opens here tomorrow (exclusive) and the only thing more certain about it than that Judge Landis will arrive needing a haircut, is that the Cincinnati Reds will win.

The Detroit Tigers have been made the betting favorites at 5 to 7 but those odds are as phoney as an umpire's smile, and I'll give you seven or eight reasons to prove it. In the first place, the Reds have the pitching, and if that doesn't give them an edge then every baseball authority from Abner Doubleday down to Tallulah Bankhead is a liar.

The first thing that a baby in this country is told is that pitching is seven per cent of winning baseball. The Reds have Derringer, Walters, Thompson, Turner and Beggs to toss against the Tigers, and all the Tigers have to answer with are Rowe, Newsom, and Bridges. After these three are used up Detroit will have to appeal to the stands for help.

In the second place, the National league just can't go on losing. World Series to the American league forever. The Nationals have lost five straight and it's a long worm that has no turning. Besides, President Ford Frick has issued strict orders against the Nationals losing this year and he isn't one to countenance disobedience.

In the third place, Ernie Lombardi, titanic Reds catcher, has a sprained ankle that is hurting him something terrible. It is hurting him so badly that he has found it impossible to get a wink of sleep, and I figure this as the best thing that could have happened to the Reds.

Because a wide awake Lombardi, one unable to take a snooze at home plate, gives the Reds a big edge. Had Lombardi been unable to sleep last year the Reds might well have won the series from the Yankees. This year an aching ankle will serve as an alarm clock and keep Ernie in action.

The Reds will be the inspired team this series, and their inspiration will come from a fear of what the hometown customers are likely to do to them if they take another licking.

SPORTS GOSSIP

By EDDIE BRIETZ

CINCINNATI — (AP) — This fine old city is baseball crazier than it was when we showed in a year ago. . . . Mebbe it's because the Reds haven't already lost a pair to the Yanks. . . . At any rate, if the fever is any worse when we move onto Detroit, we're going to head for the nearest storm shelter and stay there for the duration. . . . Even the sober-faced Deacon Bill McKechnie is going around wise-cracking (the Deacon wasn't feeling so pert when he brought the boys home after those first two games in New York last year).

There is a feeling around town the Reds are going to take the series in five or six games and the feeling isn't based on the fact the Tiger pitchers are whipped down, either. . . . James J. Carroll, the big St. Louis bookie, is here quoting the Tigers 2-3 favorites and stands to clean up a fortune if the Reds drop out again.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR.

When Tom Stidham ordered secret practice for his Oklahoma Aggies, Sports Editor Hugh Cripps in the Bartlesville (Okla.) Enterprise:

Sweethearts, sisters cousins—
Stidham bans 'em by the dozens

EXTRA, EXTRA!

Billy Kelly, veteran sports editor of the Buffalo Courier-Express may have scored a nation-wide beat if what he wrote the other day pans out—that Detroit may swap Buck Newsom during the winter because some of the Tiger fans have soured on some of his antics. . . . The main idea out here right now is try to get a hotel room.

HELP, HELP!

Johnny Law, the old Notre Dame star, now is recreation director at Walkill prison, Walkill, N. Y. . . . He's asking his old friends among coaches to send him one complete uniform with two or three games left in it. . . . Also, any other old paraphernalia, such as balls, etc.

KENNEL CLUB.

Note to Messrs. Red Dawson and Ray Wolf: You'll have plenty of company in the football doghouse this week-end. . . . Disgusted Dept.: Marvin Cress of the Spencer (N. C.) high, made two touchdown runs of 98 and 85 yards vs. Winston-Salem the other day, but both times he was called back by "That Man." . . . Mel Allen, who aired the Giant-Yankees games this season, had better look to his laurels. . . . Young Jack Sloeum, son of Bill the old sports writer, filled in for Mel the other day and the fan telegrams were terrific.

YOU BET.

The team that lands old Steve O'Neill
Will come out on top in the deal.

PERCENTAGE .333.

As Charles Turner of Columbia, Mo., points out, if only Taft and the Indians had come through along with the Reds wouldn't Ohio have had one hell of a year.

THEATERS

Musical Extravaganza.

Mirth and melody reign at the Ohio where Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland and a group of youngsters are entertaining with harmonies and comicalities in "Strike Up the Band." Paul Whiteman who plays himself announces a radio contest for high school bands and it's then that Mickey and Judy set off the fireworks. In order to raise money for a trip to the contest they stage an old-time melodrama with the buzz saw, heroine tied to the railroad track and such ancient ditties as "Heaven Will Protect a Working Girl."

Exciting Double Bill.

The great story of the Northwest Mounted, written by James Oliver Curwood, has been filmized in "River's End," starring Dennis Morgan and George Tobias. This picture begins Wednesday at the Madison telling a dramatic tale of civilization's last outpost and the scarlet-coated Mounties who rule it. The cofeature is "Stranger on the Third Floor," starring Peter Lorre and many others.

Two Gay Comedies.

One of the gayest comedies of the season is "My Love Came Back," starring Olivia de Havilland and Jeffrey Lynn. The picture began today at the Ritz and will run through Thursday, along with another entertaining comedy "Those Were the Days," starring a young cast. In the former picture Olivia is cast as a poor and temperamental violin student who learns many things from Jeffrey, who is a serious young business executive.

Darro In Trouble.

It seems like Frankie Darro is always in trouble in his film roles, and the same thing happens in "On the Spot," the picture at the Park. The young man becomes involved in a murder mystery when a wounded racketeer is about to announce he has hidden $300,000 in loot. In a lighter vein is "Sandy is a Lady," starring the youngster Baby Sandy and Butch and Buddy of the "Underpup" fame.

NASHVILLE WINS, 5 TO 3, TO COP DIXIE SERIES

HOUSTON — (INS) — The Nashville Volunteers turned toward home today, champions not only of the Southern Association but also of the Dixie series.

A two-run rally in the tenth inning at Houston last night enabled the Vols to triumph over the Texas league champion Buffaloes 5-3, and win their fourth game in five starts. Houston collected their single victory at Nashville, then dropped three straight at home.

Your family car was a dandy job
When it was bright and new.
But autos sure have changed since then.
And, you are older too.
Time has changed you both a bit.
You both show "wear and tear."
So a brand new car in place of yours
Will erase those lines of care.

PAM— Those Serial Numbers!

By A. W. Brewerton

PAM'S SUDDEN EXCITEMENT HAS TRANSFERRED ITSELF TO DAVID.
DAVID — IF-IF YOU TOOK IN THESE — THESE SUSPECTS — AND FOUND MONEY ON THEM THAT THIS MAN PAID THEM — WOULDN'T THAT BE EVIDENCE — PROOF AGAINST THEM?
I'LL SAY IT WOULD! — BUT THE MONEY WASN'T MARKED WE COULDN'T IDENTIFY IT.
IF — IF YOU HAD THE SERIAL NUMBERS — WOULD THAT DO?
AND HOW — BUT WE HAVEN'T THEM!
WELL I HAVE! OF EVERY ONE OF THOSE BILLS!
PAM! — YOU CAN'T MEAN IT?!
YES, DAVID — THAT NIGHT I WAS AFRAID TO GO BACK TO THE APARTMENT — STAYED IN THE CAR — I WROTE THEM ALL DOWN!
QUICKLY DAVID SPRANG FOR THE TELEPHONE
PAM! YOU WONDER GIRL!! WE MAY GET THOSE RATS YET!

LEADING ISSUES EDGE FORWARD IN STOCK MART

Boardrooms See Constructive Indicator in August Retail Sales Report.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Leading stocks continued to edge forward in today's early market dealings.

Boardrooms saw a constructive indicator in the department of commerce summary placing August retail sales of independent stores (except department stores) in 34 states at 10.7 per cent above the like 1939 month.

Federal reserve figures showed commercial, industrial and agricultural loans of member banks in 101 cities, for the week ended Sept. 25, dropped $3,000,000 after rising $123,000,000 in the four preceding weeks.

MUSSOLINI AND SUNER DISCUSS SPANISH STAND

Franco Sidesteps War Entry, Keeps Attack Base on Gibraltar Open.

here to refer to the United States. This description has been applied to the United States repeatedly since the signing of the tri-partite military alliance.

The Fremdenblatt, which is regarded as well informed on the diplomatic and economic policies of the Reich, declared that "since Germany, Italy and Japan have united in a defensive alliance it has become essential that the two remaining continental powers—the United States and Russia--take up their final positions with regard to the conflict, either on the side of the English world of yesterday or the new order. . . ."

"The solemnly expressed pact," the paper continued, "replaces the traditional Anglo-Saxon universalism with a new conception of the world characterized by peaceful competition of four continental spheres of the future—the American hemisphere, the Russian empire, greater Asia and the Euro-African world."

Predicting Russia's decision, the Fremdenblatt said:

"It is now possible to discuss supplementing the Berlin military alliance by an Euro-Asiatic power bloc which, including Russia, would be the declared opponent of all tendencies of England and certain other interventionist circles to expand the war."

The Fremdenblatt's statement coincided with an assertion by authorized German sources that Germany aspires to peace only with victory and, until that victory has been won, will wage war uncompromisingly.

This outline of the German position was offered in response to inquiries as to whether a German "peace offensive" was in preparation.

Such reports have been inspired in some quarter by the far-flung diplomatic activity in which the Axis now is engaged.

"War will be waged to the end," said the German spokesman. "It will be waged without compromise. Peace will come after victory and only after victory."

Warns America Against Japan

ROME—(UNS)—A blunt warning to the United States not to antagonize Japan, now that Berlin-Rome-Tokyo have formed a solid tri-partite military block, was printed today in Mussolini's own newspaper Popolo D'Italia.

"The aero-naval superiority of Japan is so crushing that eventual action by the United States, without complete cooperation of Russia and England, would amount to suicide for the American fleet," the newspaper said.

Nazis Work For Russo-Jap Pact

BERLIN—(AP)—German diplomacy, according to usually well-informed sources, is lending a helping hand toward an effort to bring Russia and Japan together in a non-aggression pact.

The Axis powers, so far as can be learned, are not endeavoring to persuade the Soviet Union to adhere to the new Rome-Berlin-Tokyo alliance, although the pact invited all nations so desiring to cast their lot with the "three youthful nations."

Authoritative sources recalled that German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop, in announcing the conclusion of the three-power pact in a radio address from the Reich's chancellery last Friday, said:

"These new arrangements in no wise affect the relations either already existing or in the process of formation between themselves and the three nations and Soviet Russia."

Authorized sources said Izvestia, Russian government newspaper, now has commented on the pact in a manner similar to that of Pravda, Communist party organ.

(Pravda said the tri-partite pact was in part the result of growing cooperation between the United States and Britain and presaged further widening of the war. The newspaper declared Russia was advised in advance of the treaty and that she would remain firmly neutral.)

Declaring they had heard London rumors that Germany is putting out peace feelers, these authorized sources reiterated:

"The war is being pursued without compromise. Peace can come only after victory."

New River Firm Purchases Coal Land From McKells.

FAYETTEVILLE, W. Va.—(AP)—The heirs of the late William McKell, who died in Chillicothe last year, have sold 22,000 acres of coal lands in Fayette and Raleigh counties to the New River company for an undisclosed sum, President L. Ebersole Gaines announced today.

Two operations at Oswald and Tamroy, now employing about 400 men, were included in the transfer.

The Chesapeake and Ohio railroad recently purchased from the McKell heirs the Kanawha, Glen Jean and Eastern railway which McKell built for the development of his West Virginia holdings.

GERMAN AID TO FINLAND SEEN

to suggestions that Germany openly has offered to help Finland in case of attack.

With Germany still occupied with the war on Britain, such assistance would hardly reach the proportions of an official expedition, it was said here.

But it was recalled that last winter Sweden helped Finland stave off invasion for some months by sending large quantities of war equipment, food, medical supplies and many volunteers. German and Swedish help of a similar character could do much to stem another Russian attack if it came, observers believed.

Best informed Swedish circles said an invasion attempt does not seem imminent, although Russian troops along the Finnish frontier were reported to be numerous. They believe Russia could not hope to launch a successful attack for two or three months when the Finnish swamps and lakes will be sufficiently frozen over to hold tanks and armored material.

Col. Harrington, WPA Administrator Dies In Hospital

NEW LONDON, Conn.—(AP)—Col. F. C. Harrington, 53, who capped a brilliant army career by becoming head of the vast Works Projects administration, died here last night at the Lawrence and Memorial associated hospitals.

Suffering from what his physician described as an intestinal obstruction, Harrington underwent an operation Sept. 23 and apparently was on the road to recovery, able to converse by telephone with his aides in Washington as recently as last Friday. Complications developed, however, and his condition became critical Sunday.

His two children, William Harrington, a student at Yale, and Miss Eleanor Harrington, were at his bedside last night. They are his only immediate survivors, his wife, the former Eleanor Closier Rayburn, having died in February, 1938.

Predicts General Business Boom In Next Five Years

WILLARD — Speaking before the Commercial club here last night, D. F. Stevens, general superintendent of trains for the B. & O. railroad, predicted a general business boom in the United States during the next five years.

"Already throughout the country there are many signs pointing to generally improved business conditions," he said.

Stevens revealed that the B. & O. railroad "had been getting its share" of the business and predicted that at the present rate of business the B. & O. could be out of debt in three years.

Stevens accompanied Daniel Willard, president of the B. & O., to Willard on a tour of inspection of the railroad. The pair, along with other officials, left Willard this morning in a private car.

entirely on the way the "putter-offers" have been going, he isn't even mildly pessimistic.

"My earlier prediction that there will be more licenses sold this year than in any other still holds," he said today with conviction. "This thing is far from being over yet."

Meanwhile, police throughout the state today started to check on motorists to see if they had obtained their 1941 drivers' licenses. Old licenses expired at midnight last night.

Cylon W. Wallace, state registrar of motor vehicles, said that heavy last-minute rushes throughout the state probably had aided in securing permits for most of Ohio's 2,700,000 drivers, although up to yesterday nearly one-quarter of them had failed to obtain their new licenses.

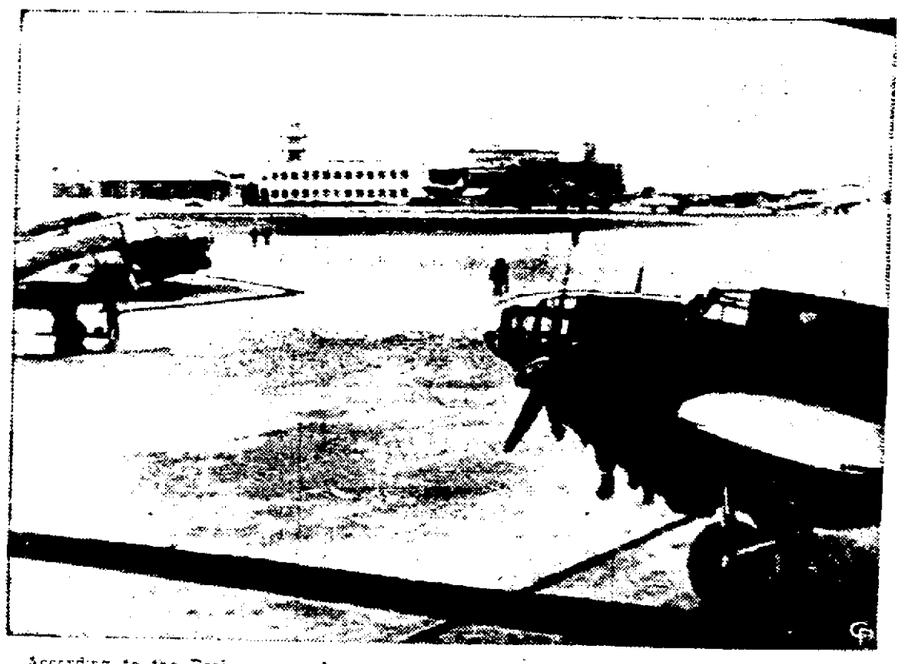
Where Nazi Airmen Take Off for London Raids



According to the Berlin censored caption accompanying this photo, the scene is a German airdrome situated in northern France. It is probably being used as a base for German airmen conducting raids over London.

but one fire during the night and this one was put out promptly.

In other parts of England slight damage and some casualties were reported in raids on northwest, northeast and southeast towns and a coastal town in Wales.

It was said officially that 47 German planes had been shot down yesterday. Loss of 22 British planes was admitted but the pilots of 12 were safe.

Heavy Attacks On Britain Start

BERLIN—(UNS)—Heavy new attacks on Great Britain by Germany's air legions began early today and have been proceeding in force ever since, Berlin authorities declared this afternoon.

Strong air raids against England's south coast have been in progress since forenoon, taking advantage of the fine weather and perfect visibility prevailing over the English channel, they said.

If the fine weather continues, Berlin officials predicted, the British Isles will get a "gigantic pounding" from waves of all types of German bombers.

The new assaults against Britain began only a few hours after a five-hour raid, the longest Berlin has yet experienced, kept residents of the capital in shelters until nearly dawn.

An official announcement this afternoon said only "insignificant" damage was caused to military and non-military objectives during the night attack on the capital.

Simultaneously an official announcement said 68 British planes were shot down in yesterday's air battles, while 31 German planes were reported missing.

During the five hours and eight minutes the alarm and all-clear signals, preliminary reports said, only one high explosive bomb fell on the Berlin region.

Night-flying German fighting planes pursued the raiders and were said to have shot down three over the Ruhr district.

Shortly after the alarm sounded in Berlin anti-aircraft batteries west and north of the city started firing, lighting the sky with vivid flashes.

Guns inside the city proper joined in the chorus with sporadic outbursts which kept the British craft at high altitudes so that at no time could their motors be heard.

Heavy Shipping Losses Reported

LONDON—(U.P.)—Great Britain announced today its highest week's shipping losses of the war—131,857 tons, or more than the weekly average of British shipping sunk in April 1917 at the peak of unrestricted submarine warfare in the last war.

The period covered was the week ended at midnight Sept. 22.

The previous high for this war was the week ended at midnight Aug. 25 in which 102,808 tons were lost.

During the week ended Sept. 22—19 British ships were lost. In the same period neutrals lost five ships totaling 14,420 tons, and Allied shipping three ships totaling 13,006 tons, the admiralty said.

The average weekly loss of shipping in 1048) 1917 to Britain was 130,500 tons of shipping.

(However, in April 1917 other Allied nations lost 145,000 tons and neutral nations 185,000 tons, bringing the total to 852,000 tons with Britain's month long losses of 522,000 tons added.)

WILLKIE WARNS OF CYNIC FATE

Asserts New Deal Road Leads to Democracy's End; Gets Boos at Pontiac.

There were scattered "boos" as well as cheers as the candidate rode along Pontiac streets from his special train.

Willkie said concentration of power in the hands of the chief executive and piling up of federal debt endangers democracy. Where there is great concentration of power in the federal government, he said, the rights of men to organize, to have labor unions and to lead a free life rapidly disappear.

"It is one of the great tragedies," Willkie said, "that this administration has been able to misrepresent itself and has been able to delude some people into believing that it is the friend of working people and the common man, whereas no administration is likely to be more dangerous to those people in the long run."

"The right road," he said, "is as clear as the sun. It's more right to those who are misled than to any others, because the first to suffer will be those whom this administration is misleading."

Willkie continued his tour with scheduled stops at Flint, Lansing and Grand Rapids ahead.

Willkie appealed to the women of the nation last night to remove from government "cynics whom we did not elect and who have no faith in us" and to rekindle in youth faith in democracy. He spoke before the National Federation of Women's Republican clubs at Detroit.

He said Europe was weakened by cynicism that caused the collapse of democracies and brought them under the domination of the "colossal cynicism" of Adolf Hitler. He charged that "a little group of cynics called the New Dealers" was governing the United States by force and fear.

"We too in America have become infected with cynicism," he said. "I have observed a tendency to sneer at the homely virtues that made our American life so abundant and forceful.

"I have observed a tendency especially among our young people to dismiss the moral and spiritual standards of our American tradition. Our young people are inclined to tell us those standards, in their own words, are the bunk."

He said thousands of young people who had lost faith had formed Communist groups and received encouragement "from high places."

"When I am elected, the first thing I shall do to help you in the great task that lie ahead of you will be to clean house in the government. I will clean out the cynics and unbelievers, the nuts and bunk artists," Willkie said. "My administration will be composed of men who believe in the American people.

"There has been a lot of talk about danger of changing administrations in an emergency. The closer Mr. Roosevelt gets us to war, the more the New Dealers say we ought not change horses in the middle of the stream.

"Well, for one thing, what are we doing in the middle of the stream?" he asked. "How did we get there? The man who got us in is not the right one to get us out."

TWO RESCUED

Cling 70 Minutes to Boat in Lake Erie Waves.

CLEVELAND—(UP)—After clinging to an overturned boat in Lake Erie for 70 minutes before being rescued, George Parish, 28, and Ernest Elshaw, 25, recovered from exposure today.

Their 16-foot sloop capsized when it was caught by a heavy gust of wind three-fourths mile from the White City Yacht club yesterday. A coast guard crew rescued the two men.

county outside of Mansfield and Madison township.

Recommendations for the personnel of the five-member boards which will classify 859,-men in Ohio for military conscription, are expected to be sent back to the governor by the end of the week. It is estimated that 11,049 men between the ages of 21 and 35 will register in Richland county.

Edgar Koehl, president and treasurer of the Ashland Times-Gazette, was named third member of the draft committee in Ashland county. Rowland Peters, editor of the Bucyrus Telegraph-Forum, rounds out the Crawford county committee, and Dr. G. B. Robinson, Mt. Gilead, was named to the Morrow county board.

Other "third members" named today in this section of the state were R. M. White, Millersburg, for Holmes county; Fred Link, Norwalk, for Huron county; L. A. Culbertson, publisher of the Mt. Vernon News, Mt. Vernon, for Knox county; C. H. Spencer, editor of the Newark Advocate, Newark, for Licking county; F. S. Hinman, Berlin Heights, for Erie county; and W. D. Thompson, publisher of the Delaware Gazette, Delaware, for Delaware county.

In many cases, the governor named editors or publishers of newspapers, because of their familiarity with their communities. In others, however, men familiar both with current military affairs and their communities were named.

Gardner, who retires Oct. 5 as head of the Ohio American Legion, was recently named on the Legion's National Defense committee for the Fifth Corps Area, and was in Washington two weeks ago conferring with army officials.

DISTRICT MEET

CRESTLINE — A quarterly meeting of Past Councilors of District No. 4, of the Daughters of America was held in Tiffin Saturday afternoon. Attending from Crestline were Mrs. Glen Caldwell and daughter Dixie Lee, Miss Ethel Levy, Mrs. John Minich and Elaine Winemiller. Miss Levy serves as assistant president of the district and Mrs. Caldwell is inside sentinel.

Plans were made to hold future meetings bi-monthly and the next one was announced for the first Saturday in December at Bucyrus. At this time an exchange of Christmas gifts will be held.

Coal Price Increase Seen as Code Goes Into Effect

PRODUCERS TO OPERATE UNDER FEDERAL PLAN

Secretary of Mansfield Retail Association Says Amount of Hike Uncertain as Yet.

Predictions that the price of coal would go up as a result of action by the bituminous coal division of the interior department to stabilize the industry were made today by E W Casey, secretary of the Mansfield Retail Coal Dealers Credit Exchange

"There is no way of determining just how much the price of various grades of coal will increase," he said "but you can be sure they will"

After months of hearings and study, the new prices were formulated to stabilize the industry which has suffered losses during the past several years.

Although prices, as fixed by the code, apply only to the coal sold at the mine, dealers in coal must automatically hike their prices for coal, Casey said

"If we have to pay more for our coal, we have to ask the consumer to pay more." Casey explained

Producers of bituminous coal throughout the country have joined the code, agreeing to abide by prices, marketing rules, and regulations promulgated by the division

The division says that a soft coal producer does not have to join the code, but points out that if he does not, his coal is subject to a 19½ per cent tax.

The same penalty applies to code members who sell their coal below the established minimum Every type of soft coal produced has a fixed price.

Industrial coals were expected to increase from 50 to 75 cents per ton but smaller ones were anticipated for domestic coals at present, Washington dispatches said.

On an average, minimum bituminous coal prices will average 11 cents per ton higher than 1937 levels—the latest year for which such figures are available, these dispatches said.

DAMAGES ASKED

$8,820 Suit Filed by Ashland Man Hit By Tire Rim.

ASHLAND—In a suit filed here in common pleas court, judgment for $8,820 is asked by Charles D. Blair from Sam Gasperoni and others.

The plaintiff, who brought the suit by his mother, claims that on Oct. 6, 1939, the defendant's agent, Joseph Gennaro, asked at the Lindsey filling station on route 42, to inflate a tire.

He claims that while so doing the steel rim sprung from the tire, striking him, and inflicted injuries of a permanent nature.

Drill For Benefit of Latin American Visitors Booked By Army Fliers.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Demonstrations disclosing startling development of parachute troop tactics by the U S army will be staged later this week for the Latin-American military chiefs visiting American defense centers, it was learned today.

Army plans for the demonstration were perfected as the high ranking visitors representing nine nations paid their respects to President Roosevelt at the White House on the first day of their tour.

The group will leave here tomorrow by plane and will inspect major defense training centers from coast to coast.

Progress of the parachute troop tactics training has been a closely guarded army secret until recently, it was revealed, but the military chiefs now believe that preliminary training in this type of fighting has advanced to the stage where the tactics can be exhibited. The army now plans to stage a parachute troop drill from the air about the middle of the week, when the visiting military experts will be at one of the army air fields in the south.

The opening day's program for the visitors included as well as the White House visit, a call on chief of staff, and a trip through chief o fstaff, and a trip through the capitol during the morning, with a military review at Fort Meyer, Va., across the river, topping off the day's activities Tonight the Latin Americans will be guests at a dinner given by General Marshall.

BETTMAN CITES STEADY GAIN OF BUREAUS, CALLS IT DANGER

Dangers of excessive bureaucracy in government were pointed out at today's meeting of the Mansfield Rotary club by Gilbert Bettman, former attorney general of Ohio and candidate for judge of the state supreme court

Bettman who is in Mansfield to address a county-wide installation of officers of the American Legion, to be held tonight, paid a tribute to that organization as a great stabilizing force in present unsettled conditions in the United States.

Directing attention to rapid growth in agencies of government, Bettman told of the experience in Ohio during his terms as attorney general, 1928-1932, when the new state office building was built to care for overflow of state departments from the capitol itself

"Seven outside buildings were then in use for state departments," he said. "Now the new office building has been filled and nine other buildings are being used to house the surplus."

He stressed the importance of political parties, which, he said, are "the vehicles through which free people express themselves"

Germany's present condition he asserted, came about through the absence of an opposition party. "At the start of the Nazi party," he said, "it was supported by only about 25 per cent of the German people, but it crushed opposition and became the only party permitted in Germany."

Government, he said, produces no wealth, and whatever money is required for its support must come from productive workers

L. E Osborne was program chairman of the meeting, at which C. G. Hillier, club president, presided.

FALL JURY GETS DAMAGE HEARING

First Case Heard Today, Two Others Settled Out of Court, Monday.

The new fall petit jury heard its first case this morning as two cases scheduled for yesterday, the opening day of court, were settled before they reached the jury.

Dr. Bernard W Stern was defendant in a $5,120 damage suit brought by Mrs. Lucy Denero, who claimed permanent injury to her health and other damages as the result of an alleged faulty tooth extraction.

The jury is made up of Ernest Owens, Ethel McClurg, Norma Miller, Walter Chambers, Floyd Wise, Elmer Geddes, Blake Garber, Herman Hautzenroeder, P. G. Krishbaum, Lulu Troll, Ida Moore and E. M. Eby.

Two cases set for hearing Monday were settled before they reached the jury. One of the cases, in which A. T. Leedy of Bellville sought $150 damages from John W. Davis and others for damage to Leedy's front yard fence, was settled for $40, it was reported.

A $650 damage suit, reported settled for less than $200, involved an alleged breach of contract for the construction of a house for John C. Karcher. O. G. Spurgeon filed the action against Karcher, claiming that Karcher backed out on an agreement to permit Spurgeon to build the house.

Attend Dedication Of New Cathedral At Toledo Today

A number of Mansfield Catholics were in Toledo today for the opening of dedicatory services at Queen of the Holy Rosary cathedral. Others are planning to attend the closing rites tomorrow.

The altars were consecrated today after the new cathedral opened its massive doors to a brilliant assembly led by the Pope's personal representative, Archbishop Amleto G Cicognani apostolic delegate to the United States

Tomorrow the walls of the cathedral will be blessed and church dignitaries from the United States and Canada will take part in the parade around the stone edifice.

Host to the churchmen is Rev. Karl J. Alter, bishop of the Toledo diocese, of which Mansfield is a part. Heading the church delegation from Mansfield are Msgr R. C Goebel and the assistant priests from St. Peter's church.

FDR WELCOMES CONSCRIPTION 'HONOR ROLL'

Information Booklets To Be Given All Who Register For Army Service.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Pointing to the 'pressing need for a stronger defense," President Roosevelt today declared in a message to the nation's 16,500,000 men of draft age that "our national existence itself' depends on the willingness of every man to do his bit.

The president's message, contained in a five-page booklet of information which will be handed to every man between 21 and 35 when he registers 15 days hence, follows

"I wish I could personally talk to each one of you about our country's pressing need for a stronger defense and its vital meaning to you, your family and the whole nation. I would tell you that the task before us today is as compelling as any that ever confronted our people and I would add that each of us must willingly do his bit if we are to hold fast our heritage of freedom and our American way of life—our national existence itself.

"And whether or not you are among those selected, I welcome you as one whose name has been inscribed on the roll of honor of those Americans ready, if need be, to join in the common defense of all.

"Signed Franklin D Roosevelt."

Contents of the booklet were made known at national draft headquarters as it was learned that county welfare agencies throughout the United States may be given investigative powers to check on statements of men who ask for deferment because they have dependents.

Under regulations now being drawn up, the 6,500 local draft boards to be set up in the nation will be empowered to call on the welfare agencies for aid in determining whether a child or a wife actually are dependents This means, it was said, that welfare agents, with the backing of local boards, can go into a home and examine bank account records and other personal files if the question of actual dependency arises.

At the same time, it was learned that draft boards would set up air tight systems to prevent draft-dodging by those deferred from immediate military training because of occupation. No occupational deferment will be granted for more than six months, a period in which employers will be asked to find a replacement for a so-called "necessary worker" At the end of every six months, the worker with a deferment will be called up for reclassification.

The booklet of "information for persons registered" will be printed in the various states. Mats for it already have been mailed. It opens with the following admonition:

"'You have registered for selective service and training in the interests of national defense Under the law it is your duty to keep yourself informed as to any action concerning you which your local board may take This booklet is given you to help you obtain this information and in observing the law Keep this booklet—read it carefully"

Then, under 20 separate subtitles, the entire machinery of conscription is explained, step by step. At one joint, it is stressed that the rules and regulations governing conscription "are written to make sure that you and every other registrant will get fair treatment."

MANSFIELD, OHIO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 1, 1940.

There seems to be a need for more resolution and fewer resolutions.

After careful study, Northwestern university finds that "where traffic laws are enforced, safety records are better than where they are not"—Ain't education wonderful!

Think over this one from the Masonic Bulletin: "The worst day in the life of a man is the day he gets the idea that he can make a dollar without giving a dollar's worth of service."

Defense Stamps Next In Order

CHANGE of postmaster general has not changed the outlook for new postage stamps. Frank C. Walker, who succeeded James A. Farley, has recently authorized three new stamp issues to carry out a national defense motif. They will be ready about the middle of October.

The defense stamps will suggest that preparedness is not a narrow, one-sided business. It includes industry and agriculture, to be depicted on the one-cent stamp, the army and navy on the two-cent stamp, and for the three-center security, education, conservation and health.

Some of the stamps of recent years have been severely plain. Others have been crowded with figures or designs. They may stimulate interest in stamp-collecting, but they also interest people who have no leanings toward philately. The latter group derives its own sort of pleasure from the historical significance of many of the stamps. And it all makes for variety in the daily mail and may stimulate the sale of magnifying glasses required for closer study.

Willkie In Ohio Tomorrow

WENDELL WILLKIE, Republican nominee for the presidency, comes into Ohio Wednesday for a rather hurried campaigning trip across the northern part of the state.

It will be possible, at Toledo and Cleveland meetings, for thousands of voters to see and hear Mr. Willkie, while other thousands will have opportunity to listen to shorter talks during train stops at Oak Harbor, Sandusky, Elyria and Youngstown.

As now scheduled, Mr. Willkie is to return to Ohio later in the month, with likelihood of being in Mansfield for at least a short talk.

Newspapers and the radio have made it possible for millions of people over the country to keep in touch with Mr. Willkie's talks on national issues during the western swing from which he has just returned, and it is noted that in the course of his more extended addresses he concentrates on various phases of present-day problems.

Slightly more than a month away from election, various polls and surveys place Ohio among the "doubtful" states, with indications pointing to a narrow margin in presidential preference and likelihood that a sufficient number of voters are as yet "undecided" to turn the scale either way.

This uncertainty, which is as it should be until all arguments of both parties have been heard and carefully weighed, will probably result in October being a month of the most intense campaigning Ohio has experienced in many years, with Mansfield and Richland county getting their full share of attention from both parties.

All of which will make this a good month for voters to read, listen and think.

Alaskan Flights Continue

PAN AMERICAN AIRWAYS announces that provisional service between Seattle and Alaska, scheduled to stop Oct. 15, will be continued throughout the winter. The four-engined planes which started last June to provide mail and passenger service to Ketchikan and Juneau found themselves doing almost as much business as their powers made possible. This business has continued, and now the national defense activity gives more reason for continuing service.

About mid-December the company hopes to have a new plane, especially built for Alaskan use.

So aviation grows in extent and usefulness. The turning of planes to purposes of horror and destruction, now so frightful to contemplate, must be viewed as but a temporary stage in the life of aviation. Purposes of peace will later demand an expansion beyond present dreams.

Origin of Golf Disputed

THE Italians are being told that golf is an old Roman game, played first by the Etruscans, then in Umbria, that it later appeared in the Low Countries and at last reached Scotland.

The Scots may be surprised to hear this. But it could be true. Most games are very old, with their forms only slightly altered by time and clime. Basketball, for instance, is thought to have been invented in the United States. But the ball games of the Mayas in Yucatan were apparently not so different. One of them seems to have been a cross between our basketball and tennis.

Old or new, Scottish or Roman, the points of view about it will doubtless remain the same. Those who don't play it think it silly for a grown man to knock a little ball around with such seriousness, and those who do play it think it an occupation worthy of any man's highest and most skilful endeavor.

Draft Benefits Expected

MANY young Americans are expected to "find themselves" as a result of the military draft. A thorough mental test goes along with the physical examination, and the examiners will try to be constructive about it, giving subjects the advantage of any useful discoveries.

The science of psychology, remarks a distinguished professor, has advanced greatly since World war days. The intelligence and aptitude tests now used and the new techniques developed are far more reliable. The experts will try to show the candidates what they are good for in civilian life as well as army life. The examination should therefore benefit alike those who are accepted for the army and those who are rejected.

Jimmy Walker is to get $20,000 a year in his new job as czar of the cloak and suit industry—which isn't bad for a reformed mayor of New York City.

Now would seem to be a good time for all magicians to get together with their chief and pull 50,000 airplanes out of a hat.

It takes all kinds of people to make a world—including a husband who would shun Hedy Lamarr.

Liberties are easier preserved than recovered.

Drunks Aren't Funny

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SHE'S from Georgia. Reading the wavering words, you can almost hear the soft southern quaver—see the old, wrinkled hands and hopeless, tear-faded eyes. Gentle hearts break quickest. Hers, I think, broke long ago. But perhaps it still isn't too late to help the younger ones—some girl wife, perhaps, as winsome and adoring as she herself must have been forty years ago.

"It's about liquor, Miss Elsie," she writes. "You people in the papers have real influence, they say. So I've been wondering if maybe you couldn't do an article about something I've never seen written up before. I mean these jokes about drunken people and how funny they are. I don't believe we'd have near as many drinking people if everybody didn't make a joke of it and act as if it was just a kind of harmless cutting up.

"Can't you make them see that drunken people aren't funny, Miss Elsie? Tell them what a terrible thing drunkenness is to the people who have to live with it—the most frightening, heart breaking thing there is on earth. I know, for my Jim went that way. He was a good man—he never would knowingly have done anyone harm. Only he never took drinking seriously — everyone laughed at it so."

Gets you, doesn't it? But suppose I do write the answer she wants. Well, I'm going to knock a lot of perfectly swell friendships higher 'n a kite. For some of my Good Fellow friends will say I've turned crank. And the rest will dub me a hypocrite, for it's many a drink I've had myself—though Heaven knows I'm no drunkard. But let 'em say what they will—the little mother gets her answer. And, what's more, my agreement!

Mind you, I'm no prohibitionist. I don't believe that such extremes are either helpful or necessary. And, riotous yelps to the contrary, I've seen many a Grand Gulper live to a ripe and cheery old age. But I've also seen many a Gay Youngster cut off before his time by the same process. And young or old, stout or spindling, I agree with old Mrs. Georgia that DRUNKS ARE NO JOKE, AND SHOULDN'T BE TREATED AS ONE.

It may be all very well for "good fellows to get together," but it's straight hell and nothing else but for the woman who must wait at home, shuddering at a fumbling footstep, cringing from a blow, wondering if there's anything left from the weekly pay check, seeing her pride and love and her children's future vomited into the gutter by the one "good fellow" who can't take it.

An imaginery picture — a Carrie Nation blast? No! One of the commonest and most tragic experiences on earth. There are, I repeat, many men who can drink in moderation and never be the worse for it. But there are, and definitely, those who cannot. Then why do they fool with it? For exactly the same reason our little old lady has named—"they don't take drink seriously."

We've made a joke of it! We act as if it were a "kind of harmless cutting up," and treat those who protest against it with what we think is justified contempt. But we never stop to think what that "cutting up" means to those who must take its consequences.

I TRULY BELIEVE THAT SOCIETY'S LEVITY ABOUT LIQUOR IS FAR MORE VICIOUS THAN THE WORST WHISKY EVER SOLD. WE DON'T MAKE WISE CRACKS ABOUT MURDER OR GIGGLE OVER CHILD BEATERS. THEN WHY GUFFAW AT THE SOURCE OF SUCH BESTIALITY?

And there's another point I'd like to make—although still not a prohibitionist—and that is the sight of immature girls swizzling over a bar. Boys are bad enough, but a young female is the most revolting and heart-rending spectacle on earth. As well as the worst pest. Were I in power, I'd make a law preventing any woman under 25 buying liquor in any public place. And I'll wager that every self-respecting bar keep and, believe it or not, most of them are would vote with me.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Friday, Oct. 1, 1920.

Checks cashed by a number of stores turned out to be forgeries (just like still happens occasionally).

Edwin O. Townsend, delegate, reported Toledo convention to Kiwanis club.

Amusement company planned to introduce roller skating at Elmwood dancing pavilion.

Criqui Furniture company opened third of chain of stores at Canton.

Westinghouse offices were transferred from Bird building to fourth and fifth floors of new building.

Michael Korodi bought Irwin property, northwest corner East Fourth and Franklin.

Many from Mansfield were attending street fair at Loudonville.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Tuesday, Oct. 1, 1935.

Mansfield General hospital School of Nursing prepared to open its 17th annual term at the institution.

Dale D. Arnold was re-elected treasurer of the Ohio Rifle and Pistol association for seventh term.

Dr. and Mrs. A. O. Fonkalsrud were in St. Louis, Mo., attending American Hospital association convention.

William Springer was nominated for membership on board of directors of Ohio Chamber of Commerce.

Frank H. Marquis, 33rd degree Mason, was elected as grand principal conductor of work in the Grand Council, Royal and Select Masters of Ohio, at an assembly in Columbus.

Like a woman afraid of growing old."

ALTHOUGH October is the 10th month of the year, its name signifies "eight"—survival from the earliest Roman calendar when the year began with March.

October has successfully resisted many attempts to change its name.

At first, to honor the general and relative of Augustus—Germanicus Caesar—so-called for his victories against the Germans—October's name was changed to Germanicus.

Then, to honor the Emperor Antoninus Pius, it was called after him, but this proving unpopular, it was rechristened Faustina, after the gentleman's wife—with no more success.

Again the Emperor Commodus, who liked to fancy himself as the Roman Hercules and actually had himself worshipped as a god, ordered the name of October changed to Hercules!

However, it was all no go; none of the new designations were to the liking of the masses, who continued to call it October—and it stuck.

Notable Anniversary.

The 400th anniversary of the founding of the Jesuit order of Pope Paul III is currently being celebrated by Catholics on a world-wide scale. However, Ohioans and residents of the mid-west of all faiths will be interested because of the activity of the Society of Jesus in the early history of this region and the influence of its work in the educational field in more recent years.

The early French explorers were devout Catholics and it was natural that their pioneering in the Mississippi and Ohio river valleys and in the Great Lakes region should be followed up by the missionary priests whose memories still live in many of the geographical place-names throughout the territory where they preached, taught and studied.

The Jesuit contribution to American history and to early American scientific research and thought was a notable one and the tradition is continued today as the order enters its fifth century of usefulness and service.—Columbus Dispatch.

This Is Ohio

A THREE-ACRE plot on ground in the center of the quaint village of Zoar, in Tuscarawas county, filled with flowers and shrubs, was built by early Zoarites who came to America in 1817 seeking religious freedom.

The garden is symbolic of New Jerusalem as described in the 21st chapter of Revelations. A Norway spruce in the middle of the garden represents the "tree of life." Twelve grass walks, like spokes in a wheel, radiate from the center, representing the 12 tribes of the children of Israel.

There are massed beds of marigolds, sweet alyssum, cosmos, zinnias, corn-flowers, and blue lace-flowers, with borders of mignonette, and dwarf morning glories. The "king's place," across from the garden, is now a museum under the direction of the Ohio historical society.

Elwood's Willkie Day Hangover; Coast Guard Transfer to Navy

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

ELWOOD, Ind.—This pleasant little town, where Wendell Willkie was born and where he accepted the Republican nomination for president, has a painful headache.

The folks ruefully call it "Willkie Day hangover" and blame it on red-haired, bustling Homer Capehart, straw boss of the notification ceremony. The wealthy musical instrument manufacturer, who two years ago staged the famed grass roots conference, sold the townspeople on the idea that a golden harvest awaited them.

The tens of thousands of visitors which he promised came, but they didn't spend, and the only harvest Elwood reaped was a flock of unpaid bills.

Capehart was irresistibly persuasive. "If you folks have any get up," he prodded them, "you can make yourselves some real money. There will be a half million visitors here, so don't be afraid to spend a little getting ready for them.

"The way to make money is to spend some. If you've ordered ten thousand buns, double it. You'll get your profit in volume."

Elwood took this advice to heart. Buns, bread, hot dogs, hamburgers, pies, melons, soft drinks and ice cream were ordered by the mountain load. There were enough edibles for a half dozen armies.

The armies came, but they didn't eat. What happened was that the visitors who traveled by train ate on the train, and those who drove to Elwood either brought their lunches or ate somewhere else.

The Republican national committee had a contract with the Robertson Catering Co. to supply all persons coming on the special trains of the Pennsylvania railroad with one meal on the train and a box lunch in Elwood.

Bills, Bills, Bills.

CAPEHART left town after the notification, and Elwood was left holding the bag. With thousands of dollars of unpaid bills, the Elwood notification committee has only $13 in the treasury. Glenn Hills, wealthy Kokomo attorney and GOP nominee for governor, contributed $5,000 to pay the most pressing bills.

Largest unpaid accounts are owed to an Indianapolis decorating firm, which has placed its bill in the hands of an attorney; to an Elwood electric company, which is talking of legal action if its bill isn't paid soon; to an Elwood restaurant; to an Elwood five-and-ten-cent store; and to a balloon company in northern Indiana.

Among the loudest complainers are unpaid laborers and special policemen. One special policeman, Leslie Stone, finally got the $18 owed him when he told harassed Mayor G. M. Bonham he had joined the navy and needed the money before he left home.

Ray Snipes, an unemployed WPA worker with five children in school, hasn't been so lucky. He still is waiting for the $8 he claims is due him. Snipes wrote Willkie in Rushville, but hasn't received an answer yet.

Louis Moschell, 62-year-old jobless, estimates the loss of himself and his brother-in-law at $500. They were left with 350 pounds of hamburger, 9,000 buns, 200 pounds of Coney Island sandwich supplies, and 1,500 bottles of milk. Moschell paid his bills by borrowing $120 on a 90-day note from the local bank.

He feels that Capehart or the Republican organization ought to reimburse Elwoodians for their losses, and there is talk of getting up a petition to demand this.

The Braun Bottling company estimates its losses from $800 to $1,000. The firm emptied 1,000 cases of a specially-prepared "Willkie Day" souvenir drink into the sewers. The owners of the Willkie birthplace painted the house and placed a tarpaulin on the floor so visitors could be shown through at 20 cents a head. They took in approximately $12.50.

Bright Spots.

BEFORE Willkie left Rushville, a committee from the Elks lodge interviewed the nominee and told him of his home town's economic plight. He was very sympathetic and promised that if elected he would locate some defense industries there.

The city needs them. The industries which years ago made it one of the most prosperous in Indiana moved away when the natural gas played out. One of the last of the local plants is having its own slump, too. The Monticello Manufacturing Co., which produces the Willkie "Hope of our Nation" auto tags, is laying off men.

Several of the laid-off workers dropped into the Democratic headquarters the other day to see if they couldn't stir up some orders for Roosevelt tags. The Democrats shook their heads sadly. "We'd like to," they said, "but we haven't got any money."

Note—For Tony Shaffer, alert farmer near Elwood, the doleful hangover was a ten-strike. He hauled surplus bread and buns from Calloway park for two weeks to feed his stock. Shaffer paid 20 cents a thousand—until he found he could take them for nothing.

Navy Bound.

WASHINGTON — Coast guardsmen may soon be singing, "We're in the Navy now . . ."

The coast guard was incorporated into the navy during the World war, but after the Armistice was returned to its independent status as a treasury agency. During the government reorganization in 1939, the navy made undercover efforts to absorb the coast guard, but the potent influence of Secretary Morgenthau and Rear Admiral Russell R. Waesche, popular CG commandant, stood in the way.

With the army and navy being expanded, the plan has been revived and the inside word is that the transfer will be ordered shortly.

Meanwhile, coast guard facilities already are being drafted for navy use. Nothing has been said about it publicly, but those two destroyers that were recalled from Lisbon, because of their similarity to the fifty turned over to the British, are being replaced by coast guard cutters. These ships, painted white instead of the navy's battle-gray, are equipped with larger guns than the over-age destroyers.

Also, coast guard cutters are participating in the navy patrol off the coast of Greenland, and the CG depot at Curtis Bay, Md., recently was pressed into service for the overhauling of two navy destroyers. Eight more are scheduled to be sent there for repairs.

Note—The coast guard is older than the navy, having been founded in 1790. It has its own academy at New London, Conn.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

SAN JUAN, P. R.—I am writing this on a cool blue terrace that looks out over the southern ocean. If we could see land it would be Africa. But there is no land—only a horizon, and a freighter that is hull down, and the summer stars that are beginning to come out and powder the sky.

Before me is a crumpled envelope with these notes set down on it, "Captain Fatt" "Christian Belle" "Rogers Humphreys." . . . These are people whom I have talked with today. . . . Very interesting people. . . . They are men who do things, and who have known life in out of the way places in the world. Let me introduce you to them.

CAPTAIN FATT, who is new to San Juan, will be a regular visitor from now on. He is the captain of the Stratoliner, which picks up San Juan on its regular flight to Buenos Aires. The name is something of a misnomer, though he is no lightweight. Capt. Fatt is a little gray at the temples, and he has laugh-wrinkles at the corner of his eyes. The storm clouds and the winds do not bother him overly much. He goes up above them. "Up there," he says, "it's like glass. You do not even look up from your newspaper."

Christian Belle is the French consul to Puerto Rico. When he joined us at lunch today there was something about him that seemed vaguely familiar. But I couldn't place him. He told about caring for a white Persian kitten for a friend who is on business in the States. There had been a ghastly moment the night before when the kitten, becoming frightened, had leaped seven stories onto a cement courtyard below. Belle hurried down stairs, troubled at the explanation he would have to give his friend. But the kitten was absolutely unharmed.

As he explained his gratitude at this happy turn I could not help but feel that I had known, or at least had seen this man before. Well, of course I had. It came out a little later. He had been in Puerto Rico only a year. . . . The four years previously he had been in New York. . . . Furthermore, we had worked in the same building. . . . I suppose I had passed him in the hallways a hundred times. Again we have occasion for the shopworn but somehow always adequate phrase, "It's a small world after all."

ROGERS HUMPHREYS is the civil aeronautics inspector for Puerto Rico, though he lives on the island of St. Thomas, which is one of the Virgin group. St. Thomas from San Juan is 80 miles away. Sometimes he flies; at others he comes by boat. . . . "I like the boat trip because it is at night and you can go to bed in St. Thomas and wake up after a refreshing night's sleep in San Juan," he says.

He also spoke enthusiastically of the bargains in pipes that one could find on the nearby English Islands — and of the sparkling wines that came so cheaply that, at first he was afraid to buy them. . . . Down here, incidentally, champagne is a futile luxury. It goes flat almost as soon as you open it. There's something in the salt tropic air that kills the effervescence. Just why this should be I do not know. Perhaps it is jealously on the part of Nature, who resents effervescence in anything or anyone save herself.

A Farmer's Diary

Cutting Corn

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

TWO WEEKS AGO I noticed five thin small rows of shocks full length of my neighbor's corn field, at equal distances. Only from higher ground, or looking from each end, were they visible among the tall green stalks. The heads were tied with a slender limber stalk of corn.

Early one morning I saw his team hitched to the corn binder standing at the west end of the field. He started next to the rows he had cut by hand and bound one wide shock row before he unhitched the team. That afternoon, beneath a warm autumn sun, he started, single handed, to set up the heavy bundles against the small shocks he had made before. Beads of perspiration stood out upon his forehead, and his dark tanned arms glistened with sweat.

"That's a long heavy job for one man alone," I suggested.

"Yes, you're right. Them blades are sharp and the corn is green and heavy. I'll have it finished in three more days, though, and be ready to sow wheat. That's why I made the shock rows so far apart, so's I could disk for wheat. Not all the farmers around here count on sowing oats in spring—I always think oats don't do the ground no good and even if the corn field is left until spring it generally goes into soy beans. Another thing, I don't like to see a field bare all winter. It ought to be covered with a crop to keep the best inch of top-soil from leaching out and going down the creek. A good farmer'll keep it on his farm and add more if he can. I'll have to stop now and do chores, but I aim to work by moonlight, after supper."

The next morning I saw the entire row shocked up and in three more days, as he had estimated, all five long close-set rows of shocks were drying in the sun. The tall drab tassels met at the top and were bound with binder twine.

At evening the long straight lines stood like soldiers at attention in the dusk. The sweetish heavy fragrance of new cut corn was almost tangible. I found a rare delight to stand in the confines of the field and drink in the odorous atmosphere that floated out and up like incense. At sunup, white zones of fog lay deeply over the valley. Only the tops of the massive shocks seemed to float on the surface of the earthbound cloud. At noon a blue haze filled the lower atmosphere and waves of shimmering heat arose from the field.

19 MORE FILE APPLICATIONS FOR CITIZENSHIP

Apply For First Papers as 69 Others Get Set For Final Examinations.

With 69 foreign-born residents of Mansfield and Richland county scheduled to take their final examinations for citizenship Wednesday, 19 others filed their first papers yesterday in common pleas court in preparation for the February naturalization test.

Tomorrow's class, which will go before Judge C. H. Huston and an examiner from the Youngstown immigration office, will be the largest in the history of the county. Successful applicants for citizenship will get their papers within a few days.

Norman P. Henry, county naturalization clerk, said the petitions received yesterday were the first to be filed for the February class. A number of others are expected before the 90-day filing deadline. A. E. Weatherbee, federal naturalization officer from Youngstown, helped applicants fill out their applications.

Those who filed petitions were: Mike Soka, 282 Harker street; Eva Deschner, 375 Fifth avenue; Nicola Stoyan Angelcovich, 209 North Mulberry street; Mary Elizabeth Bauderer, 839 East First street; John Gardner, Shelby; Louie Christy, 34 Buckingham street; Luigi Letezia, 243 North Diamond street; John Sarafis, 207 Coul street; Elizabeth Costo, 172 Daisy street.

D. 1; Vincenzo D'Agostini, 68 Auburn street; Samuel Dobre, 18 Crestline avenue; Lasar Georgevitch, 131 West Fifth street; Anna Marie Wallstrom, 121 Blymyer avenue; Ida C. Cotbenmoyer, R. D. 2, and Elizabeth Sheets, 534 North Mulberry street.

CAR DUSTERS CLUB FORMED

New 'Youth Movement' Gets Authorization of Police at Quincy, Mass.

QUINCY, Mass.—(INS)—A new "youth movement" has been launched by the Quincy Police Department. Under the leadership of Police Captain George Fallon, forty of the city's approximately sixty "car dusters" are being organized as the "Police Authorized Car Dusters."

After an organization meeting, at which Captain Fallon presided, it was announced the boys had been asked to nominate candidates to head the club. Members of the club are to have badges and will work at city parking spaces.

Among other things the captain hopes to do away with the practive of larger boys "bullying" smaller competitors away from their parking spaces and marring of automobiles of drivers who do not want their machines dusted. They also will police parking spaces, he said.

The Captain told the youths he expected the movement would result in increased tips. Whether the receipts should be kept by the individual or pooled by the organization was a problem the captain hedged away from. He told the forty boys at the meeting that was a point they must decide for themselves.

Old Pipemaster Remains on Job After 47 Years

BOSTON —(INS)— Joseph Milch, 71-year-old pipemaster, and his two assistants, who work all day in a window of a little tobacco shop, repair about 15,000 pipes annually besides turning out several thousand more on order.

Crowds halt in their pursuit of errands to watch the pipemaker make and repair "the finest tobacco pipes in the land." But Milch doesn't care. He is too absorbed in his job.

Milch has spent 47 years in the little tobacco shop in the city hall district. He is known to all frequenters of the neighborhood. Politicians, racketeers, professional men and the common men all have seen Milch at work.

A cheerful little man, Milch is constantly puffing one of the six blackened pipes he has beside him as he twirls the French briar bowls in the 62-year-old shop.

Milch began his career in Vienna at the age of 13. After serving an apprenticeship of four-and-a-half years, he came to America after a brief "fling" in Paris.

His brother, who preceded him to this country, was employed in the little tobacco shop where Milch came immediately on his arrival in Boston.

FRANCE'S WHEAT HARVEST SAVED

Over 90 Per Cent of Crop In Occupied Territory Reaped for Bread.

PARIS—(INS)—From 90 to 95 per cent of the wheat harvest in occupied France has been saved, it was announced here.

When the Armistice was signed in June, wheat and other grain crops were maturing under favorable weather conditions, but the flight of thousands of peasants and the generally chaotic conditions out-balanced the advantage. One of the first problems of the German Army of Occupation and the French authorities was to find men and material for the harvest. Several hundred thousand prisoners were made available for the work, in which German soldiers also took a hand.

It was at first feared that not more than 60 per cent of the crop would be saved, but as the harvest nears an end, the percentage for the departments around Paris is 95 per cent.

No information is available as yet as to the yield for the entire country, compared with more normal years, but one thing is certain, the weather has favored a good grain crop.

Many farm problems still remain unsolved, and soon farmers' attention will be turned to the vintage, which, according to present indications, will result in a good "cru."

Mansfield's Police Department Has 3 Photogs, All Make Excellent 'Shots'

They've Taken More Than 2,000 Pictures Since Bureau Started.

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

Little more than three years ago, in the summer of 1937, city council established the job of identification expert in the police department.

An identification bureau was immediately installed at headquarters and elaborate equipment was purchased.

An expensive new camera, complete with all extra gadgets was entrusted to E. C. Fuller, who was successful in the examination held for selecting a bureau chief.

The general idea of that equipment was to get photographs of serious automobile accidents and other evidence in an effort to cinch convictions, if and when the case came into court.

But somehow the idea of a brawny policeman struggling with all that delicate equipment gave rise to no little mirth around the police station.

It was a sight to behold the first efforts of the new "photographers." The stalwart lads in blue, bringing their cruiser to a halt at the scene of an accident.

Out they'd jump, take a hasty glance at the wreck and then dive eagerly into their car for the camera. They would emerge some seconds later, arms loaded with flash bulbs, plates, tripod, camera, etc.

Then came the very technical job of adjusting the shutter speed, diaphragm opening and other gadgets. There were often conference with by-standers and no little cussing and sweating.

But at last would come the breathless moment—a muttered prayer, a trip of the trigger and a blinding flash. A beaming cop would beat it back to the station darkroom to view with some disgust the results.

But that was three years ago. It has long since changed, thanks to the efforts and persistence of the officers themselves.

No shutter aces have yet been turned out and it will be some time before the shots will take any fancy prizes, but the department today has three officers who have sufficiently mastered the technical art to be able to get crash pictures that are so sharp and clear that any jury could count the scratches on a wrecked car.

What's more, their photographs many times supply clinching evidence in trials of serious accidents. Numerous times they are called upon to furnish copies for court use in supporting testimony.

"Photographs not only supply valuable factual evidence in showing skid marks and the position of the cars involved," Fuller says, "but the actual picture of the wreckage gives to court a more graphic argument of the seriousness of the offense than the most eloquent appeal any prosecutor could make."

Although they admit that they are still in the "amateur class," Fuller, Chief Meade K. Bates, and Patrolman Paul J. Martin are now classed by fellow officers as "capable photographers."

Of course, the "shooting" of crash scenes is only a part of the photographic job of the identification bureau. During the past three years approximately 2,000 photos have been made, including pictures of burglaries, and all persons convicted of felonies.

COUNCIL GETS $3,378 CLAIM

Motorist Blames Opening In Street For Injuries; Asks City For Expenses.

Echoes of the freeze-ups which caused numerous water line breaks throughout the city last winter will resound again tonight to the tune of $3,378 when city council meets for its October session.

Filed with council yesterday is a claim for that amount for damages resulting from an accident claimed to have been caused by one of the openings in the pavement. It is another in a series which council has received since early spring.

The communication heads a list of minor business which is scheduled to come before the legislators for consideration in what is expected to be a brief session.

The claim was filed by R. J. Welsh, 641 Davis road, through his counsel, Attys. Henkel and Gongwer.

Claiming that he lost control of his car and collided with another machine when the automobile struck the opening, Welsh said he suffered a broken knee and spent considerable time in the hospital.

He asks the damages to defray costs of damages to his machine, medical and surgical care and "special damages." He says the accident left him with a permanent disability. The accident occurred Mar. 3 on Marion avenue near Sloane avenue.

SIMPSON TIMES OUT ON FRIDAY

First issue this year of the John Simpson Times, monthly newspaper published by students of John Simpson Junior high school, will be off the presses Friday, Edwin Fensch, editorial adviser, announced yesterday.

Editor of the paper this year is Virginia Marion, while Janet Goldsmith is business manager. John Uzunoff is assistant editor and Mary Roadpoach, assistant business manager.

Typing of manuscripts is being done by Gretchen Lane and Jane Johnson, post graduate typing students of Senior high school.

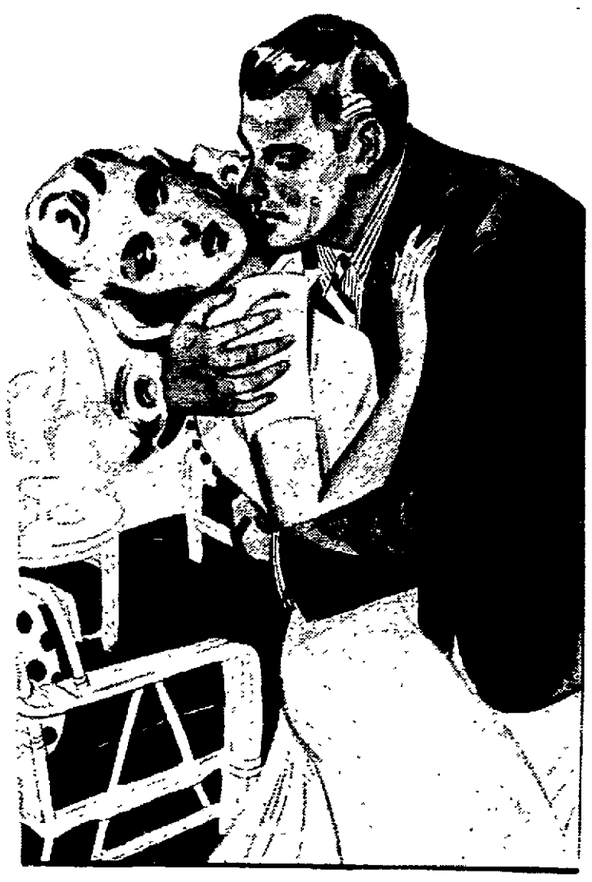
"The World Is Like That"



The story of a girl who imagined she was in love with a married man . . . so much in love, that the thought of not seeing him again drove her frantic . . . yet, when the true test came, she discovered that what she had believed was love was the infatuation of a lonely girl.
She still felt Kent's arms around her, but he was no longer he, nor she herself. They were two complete strangers.
Jocelyn Britton's whole outlook on life changed when she ran away from Kent Dunham . . . it seemed so unreal, so utterly fantastic, that what she desired most, had waited for, hoped and prayed for, meant nothing without love . . . so it was that she tried a new life, one in which there was never a dull moment . . . being governess-companion to a reckless, spoiled heiress with divorced parents was like sitting in the front seat of a "roller coaster" . . . but then there was Philip, who adored his undisciplined daughter, and somehow, Jocelyn felt that his problem was hers.

JUNIOR SOROSIS HAS VARIED PROGRAM SET

Numerous Talks By Guest Speakers Will Be Feature of Season; Several Parties Planned During Year.

A CLEVER hand-drawn cover entitled "spotlight parade" and featuring a large spotlight covers the programs of the Mansfield Junior Sorosis which were distributed this week. The club, which was organized in 1936, will begin the club year with a program on the life and music of Stephen Foster by Mrs. L. C. Baumgardner at the home of Mrs. S. R. Baird, 581 Crescent road.

On Oct. 23 the club will have a guest night program at Mrs. Baumgardner's Courtright boulevard, when R. Schiaretta speaks on "Rise of Hitler and Naziism." For the first November meeting Miss Isabel Barry, lighting specialist from Cleveland who has been heard many times in Mansfield, will talk on "Modernizing Our Present Home" at the home of Mrs. Andrew Mott, Washington avenue.

Mrs. Eugene Linham will speak on "What Does Emily Say?" at the Nov. 20 meeting when Miss Florence White, Columbia avenue, entertains. Mrs. Walter Mickey will give a book review early in December at the home of Miss Edith Beck, Park avenue west, and on Dec. 18 the group will have a Christmas party with Mrs. V. A. Simpson, South Boulevards. Mrs. A. H. Moellenkamp will give a fireside Christmas story at that time.

For the first meeting of the new year, the club will entertain members of the Mansfield Sorosis,, and Mrs. Mott will have a program on drama later in January.

"Gentlemen's Night" is the unusual title for the meeting Feb. 12 when W. L. Listerman, special agent of the F. B. I., speaks at the home of Mrs. Harold Mansfield with Mrs. Simpson in charge.

Miss Dorothy Moser will give a program on opium and marijuana at the home of Mrs. Mickey on Feb. 26, and a scientific review will be presented by Mrs. Mansfield at the home of Miss Moser, Greenwood avenue, for the first meeting in March.

"What to Do Before the Doctor Comes" is the title of the paper to be given by Mrs. William Hauserman at the March 26 meeting when Mrs. Moellenkamp, Harter avenue, entertains. Miss White will have a paper on style trends at the same session.

An interpretation of a famous painting will be given April 9 when Mrs. Hauserman entertains, and Mrs. Baird gives the program. Miss Loretta Derr and Mrs. Della Buckley of the Milady Beauty salon will speak on "What Is Your C. Q." at the April 23 meeting.

The annual meeting will be an event of May 7 with Mrs. Linham entertaining, and Miss Beck giving a travelogue. The final session of the year will be a party May 21.

Officers are Miss Moser, president; Mrs. Baird, vice-president, and Mrs. Mansfield, secretary-treasurer. The program was arranged by Mrs. Mickey assisted by Mrs. Simpson and Mrs. Baird. Mrs. H. D. Bishop is sponsor of the club.

New Motif

Military motifs appeared often in the silk parade of fall fashions. This black crepe day dress has gold military frogs. Wig hat of plumes.

PLAN SESSION.

The opening session of the Junior Music Study club will be held Oct. 8 with Mrs. E. D. Gibson, 282 West Fourth street. All music students interested in joining the club have been asked to attend this session. The organization had a wiener roast over the week-end with Ruth Ann Fox at the family cabin at Millsborough.

Freshen Kitchen For Homemaker With Gay Gadgets

When you begin to freshen up your kitchen against the arrival of winter you might also treat the cook to some of the new gadgets which will make the kitchen a pleasanter place to work in.

To the cutlery drawer you might add one of the new cake knives of plastic which have a series of holes designed to eliminate the vacuum usually caused when cutting cake with a blade. Thus, the knife will not stick, and the slices come out more even.

For the ice box storage there is a line of gaily colored utility bags of the bellows type so that they balloon out and accommodate more fruits and vegetables. There are also handy mitts of the same material, which is a thin silk treated with a coating known as koroseal to make it waterproof, spotproof and acidproof. The mits are easy to slip on and will protect hands from that kitchen look.

A new type of can opener can be attached to the wall and, unbelievable though it may seem, really makes opening a can rather fun.

In the matter of kitchen decoration there is a new line of oilcloth patterns which are amusing and colorful. One pattern glorifies the Dutch girl who chases dirt with a can of well known cleaner, and the artist has substituted a flock of geese for the dirt. Another amusing pattern depicts a kitten pursuing a ball of thread around willow bushes and another uses the state flower of each of the forty-eight states for a design.

Country Day Conducts First P. T. A. Meeting

The first meeting of the season was held last night at Country Day school by the Parent-Teacher association with Mrs. E. H. Brown presiding. Following the short business meeting Miss Angeline Shaneff, director, spoke.

Miss Lella Graeff and Miss Margaret Cayford, teachers, also spoke on the plans for teaching the various grades during the coming year. Tentative plans were made for a bridge party some time this month. Refreshments were served by a committee headed by Mrs. George Kirtley.

Time To Purchase New Fall Clothes In Bright Shades

October is a month filled with sartorial excitement.

Its arrival means that one can definitely settle to the business of a new fall outfit or two and make a serious visit to the department stores. Those lovely, luscious and always flattering colors — tawny browns and yellows, mellow greens, warm reds —are at their best against the background of autumn landscapes. All of which adds up to the fact that it is a wise girl who includes at least one tweed suit or bright wool frock in her autumn wardrobe.

This year tweeds and bright colors are even more important than ordinarily. A good choice is a tweed jacket in a checked or plaid pattern with two skirts of different color, one a darker shade for town wear and the other in a bright hue for wear to football games and automobile trips into the country. Both velveteen and corduroy are very good this year and for the younger set are being shown in suits with frog trimmed, close fitting jackets and in pinafore type dresses to be worn with blouses.

Suits for big sister and mother have longer jackets this season and trimming details are important. Big lapels distinguish some of the smartest suits. Many of the skirts have suspender or bodice tops, the latter eliminating necessity for a blouse.

There is a suggestion of another era in some of the jersey dresses which have rib-knitted bodices and front fullness. Tailored dresses are frequently cut to suggest a suit.

Celebrates Birthday With Party at Home

Mrs. W. B. Jones entertained with a party for her son, Philip, yesterday in honor of his third birthday. The guests present at the home, 226 Clairmont avenue, gave Philip many gifts, and when refreshments were served, they received favors.

Those in attendance were: Nancy Gast, Billy and Carol Pierce, Nancy Snyder, Bobby and Mary Lou Smith, Dickie Minard, Joan Wendling, Donald Rabal, Peggy Rust, Tommy McFadden and Larry Hammet.

PLAN SESSION.

There will be an all-day quilting session for members of the Willing Workers society at the church in Little Washington Thursday. A covered-dish luncheon will be served during the noon dour.

United Presbyterian Guild Has Routine Session; Music Study Club Plans Program Buffet Supper at Westbrook.

IT TAKES some of this and some of that to make up life so the sages tell us, and it also takes some of this and some of that to make up a society page. For instance it was yesterday that the United Presbyterian church guild met with Miss Lucille Day, Woodville road. Mrs. Howard McClure was associate hostess.

The devotions were led by Mrs. Hugh Rust, and Mrs. L. M. Stough, president of the Richland county W. C. T. U., and Mrs. Grace Rapes, president of the Iota Sigma chapter, spoke on their work. Mrs. R. E. Bobenstine was a guest.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, and plans were made to have another session Oct. 28 at the home of Miss Jeannette Martin, 147 Rae avenue.

Announcement was made this morning of the plans for a guest night buffet party to be held at Westbrook Country club Monday night when the Mansfield Music Study club has the opening session of the year. Miss Vera Smythe is in charge of reservations which should be called to her by Saturday.

The program is entitled "A Pageant of American Music" and will include a number of costume selections. The music to be presented will begin with the colonial period, and continue through folk, theater, and modern music past and present. The finale will feature group singing of patriotic songs of the various wars.

Fete Resident With Miscellaneous Shower

Mrs. Marcus Mullet was honored with a miscellaneous shower yesterday evening at the home of Mrs. Gilbert Spell, 125 Rae avenue. Mrs. Henry Inscore and Miss Marjorie Miles were Mrs. Spell's associate hostesses. The honoree is the former Miss Ruth Mohler.

Bridge was the evening's diversion, and prizes were awarded to the Misses Naomi Croskey, Donna Earnest and Harriet Stearns. Yellow and white appointments decorated the small tables when luncheon was served. In addition to the shower gifts from the guests, Mrs. Mullet received a gift of crystal from the hostesses.

August 1937 Marriage Announced Here Today

Public announcement of the marriage of Miss Marjorie Jane Gross and Henry Lane was made today. Miss Gross, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Gross, 25 East Arch street, became the bride of Mr. Lane at Canton at 3:30 p. m. August 18, 1937. Rev. P. H. Welohimer officiated.

The bride attended Mansfield Senior high school, and has been employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. Mr. Lane, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lane, Geddes avenue, also attended Mansfield Senior high school, and is employed at the Empire Steel and Tin Plate company. Mr. and Mrs. Lane will be at home temporarily at the East Arch street address.

Slender Silhouette Top Fashion News

By SUSAN BARDEN
(International Ill. News Writer)

It's about time to be thinking of that first fall frock. Of course it will be something for street wear, appropriate for returning to the office, shopping and lunching, so here's some early fashion news about cool weather costumes.

Slimness seems to be the word for the new styles. It is an exciting new slimness that's becoming and easy to wear. Whether you go in for pleated skirts or narrow silhouettes with front fullness and flounces, you'll find that the lines are designed to make you look your most sylph-like.

Despite the loss of the guiding hand of the Paris designers, American couturiers have gone right ahead with new style plans that are as smart and practical as anything created on the other side, and you will find that our own countrymen are able to make new things that are both chic and wearable for lives lived the American way.

You will find skirts of all widths, so it depends on your type figure and preference to choose between the various cuts that will be shown.

Two-Piece Dresses Back.

Two-piece dresses have definitely come back, and brown, green and taupe will be seen almost as much as the ever popular classic black.

Jane Wyman is wearing a perfect example of the new two-piece dress. It is made of bottle green sheer wool, which will be plenty cool enough for the first days of October, but will also look and feel warm on wintry days under a coat. The knife-pleated skirt is topped with a brief jacket showing an interesting double button front, awkward length sleeves and a collarless neckline. The off-the-face beret is made of the same shade as the dress, and with the costume is worn a natural lynx jacket.

Ann Sheridan has selected a black dress made of crepe accented with a square collar of eyelet embroidery. It is light enough to wear now, and will be the backbone of any fall wardrobe.

Jane Wyman has also chosen an interesting suit which was designed by Milo Anderson. It is made of wood brown twill styled with a four-gored skirt and a long fitted jacket. It has a flange collar of cloth of gold accented with a pair of gold keys. The slippers are brown suede, and the ensemble is completed with an extreme but becoming gold mesh turban which accents the trim of the suit.
